South Mopping Up: High Waters Recede

Thousands of families driven from their homes by devastating floods in five states prepared to return Wednesday as massive cleanup operations were launched in areas where floodwaters began receding.

But the worst appeared yet to come for some sections which still lay in the path of rampaging rivers and streams.

Parts of southeastern Kentucky and southwestern West Virginia, which appeared hardest hit by flooding, were declared disaster areas by President Kennedy. Sections of Tennessee and Virginia were being considered by the White House for similar action.

Thirteen deaths were attributed to floods and six persons were unaccounted for. Six died in West Virginia, four in Tennessee and one each in Virginia, Kentucky and Alabama.

Evacuation of Prestonsburg and Paintsville, Ky., began as the Big Sandy River approached a crest above flood stage. The Cumberland River threatened to overflow its banks at Barbourville and Williamsburg.

However, other Kentucky towns which were hit hardest by flooding, were declared disaster areas by President Kennedy. Sections of Tennessee and Virginia were being considered by the White House for similar action.

Ready For Countdown

Howard Marshall, liaison between the four civic organizations sponsoring the proposed Music Festival in Stroudsburg this June, and the festival promoters, said last night that approval of the borough council is not a prerequisite for bringing the festival here.

He said that he had spoken with Mayor Joseph Small of Stroudsburg and approval was not needed to go ahead with the plans.

"All systems are 'go,'" Marshall said, "for going ahead with the program."

He added that Maxwell Cohen, attorney for the festival corporation, said that bookings and contacts had been started.

Another Recession Worries Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said Wednesday the country will slide into another recession unless Congress heeds the lessons of the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration.

The President said Congress is faced with decisions on tax cuts, budget slashing and the debt ceiling.

"Economic history—specifically the history of 1957-60, which produced two recessions from which the economy never wholly recovered—clearly warns us now that the wrong answer to each of these three questions would spell downturn for the American economy as a whole," he said.

In a speech to the Advertising Council, Kennedy said he spoke not as a partisan or blame-layer in urging favorable action on his economic program.

"The errors of a Republican administration and a Democratic Congress during those crucial years have been previously acknowledged by members of both parties," he said.

"I do not review them now to gain political advantage in hindsight, but to gain greater degree of foresight on the same problems that face us now."

Kennedy's linking of the federal budget and debt ceiling with his tax-cutting proposals seemed to reflect an effort to broaden the base of current debate on economic policy.

He contended that tax cuts alone—"We are not asking for an unprecedented tax cut, but for a program which will add only $2.7 billion to the next budget deficit," he said—were not enough.

Warns Of Recession

He said "an unrealistic debt ceiling or budget cut today" would also cause a slowdown in the economy and ultimately another recession.

In 1957, he said, the federal government decided to "keep the debt limit unrealistically low, to cut back and stretch out budget expenditures, to tighten monetary policy and to reject all efforts at tax reduction."

The "harsh results of those decisions are still with us," he said.

All of these decisions were taken in the name of fiscal responsibility, Kennedy said, "but if that high-sounding label is intended to refer primarily to budget and balance of payments surpluses, it was a name taken in vain."

"I am hopeful," he said, "that the lessons of history will be remembered by us all—by those of us in the administration and the Congress, and those in this audience who are leaders of opinion in the business community."

Keat Resigns As Bangor Schools Head

BANGOR — The resignation of Superintendent of Schools Donald B. Keat was accepted at the meeting of the Bangor Area Joint School Board last night.

The position was declared vacant as of March 13, and the resignation will become officially effective on June 30. Keat had been superintendent for the past 15 years.

In other action, the board elected Andrew Mooney, former Penn State varsity grid player for three years, as head football coach of the Bangor Area Joint High School. He replaces the late Richard Forster who died last November.

Mooney is originally from Bethlehem. His salary was set at $4,300 a year as a teacher and $600 for the coaching position.

First Returns In Seal Drive Shows $2,090

THE first returns in the Easter Seal Campaign showed $2,090.55, Mrs. Ruth Brown, county fund drive chairman announced last night.

The drive is for the benefit of the Monroe County Crippled Children and Adult Society.

The campaign opened last week and will continue through April 14, Easter Sunday.

McNamara Strikes Back At Critics

Over Featherbedding Issue: Work Rules Talks Bogged Completely

CHICAGO (AP) — Railroad-unions' negotiations on the "featherbedding" issue collapsed Wednesday, raising the possibility of a nationwide rail strike and quick White House intervention.

A conference of leaders of the five operating labor organizations and representatives of the rail lines broke down just 1½ hours after it started.

James E. Wolfe, chief of the management's negotiating team, announced that the railroads will move as soon as possible to make sweeping changes in the work rules to eliminate what they call "featherbedding."

And the unions, embracing 200,000 members, have stated such action would trigger a walkout.

"The nation cannot stand a strike of railroad employees," Wolfe said.

Refuse Recommendation

Wolfe told newsmen that the union negotiators had refused to give any consideration to that recommendation.

He said the labor leaders wanted to go back to Nov. 2, 1959, when the negotiations began. On that date the rail lines asked for revision of old work rules. They claimed such rules cost them $600 million a year.

Under the proposed revisions, 65,000 or more of the union men could be let out gradually.

The unions—engineers, firemen, trainmen, brakemen and switchmen—made their counter demands Sept. 7, 1960. They included wage improvements and weekly and monthly pay guarantees.

Negotiations got under way April 2, 1962. Management broke them off twice—May 17, 1962, and June 22, 1962. This time, as on those occasions, management accused the unions of stalling.

The railroads accepted, but the unions rejected the presidential commission's report.

The brotherhoods tried to stop the rules revisions in the courts. But the U.S. Supreme Court on March 4 upheld management's right to make the changes.

HAND-TO-HAND CONFERENCE — Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, left, chats with Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon while waiting to speak before the Washington conference of the Advertising Council. McNamara, in his address, lashed out at critics who charged he acts like a dictator.

'Must Knock Heads'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Wednesday it is his job to knock military heads together to get a unified defense program.

Thus, he said, criticism that he acts like a dictator is "true, in a sense."

But McNamara added: "The man who made that attack yesterday is the ranking minority member of the committee that added $1.1 billion to the defense budget. I don't think it is right when we have a man to support an irresponsible action in adding over $1 billion to the budget that is not needed and then criticize the responsible official who took out the billion."

Rep. Leslie C. Arends, R-Ill., senior Republican on the House Armed Services Committee, said Tuesday on the House floor that, "I got all the answers McNamara is not a military strategist."

Scranton Hopes To Avoid Increased Taxes In State

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton said Wednesday he is still hopeful of escaping new taxes next year, despite persistent reports his 1963-64 budget will require $100 million in new revenue.

"Where they got that $100 million figure is beyond me," Scranton declared at his weekly news conference here.

But he did admit again that he probably would be faced with $50 or $60 million in mandates for such things as increased school subsidies and building authority rentals.

"We are making very strenuous economies though" in hopes of avoiding tax increases, Scranton said.

Asked if he thought these efforts would accomplish what he wants, Scranton replied:

"I don't know yet, but I'm hopeful."

Austerity Program

Scranton indicated that one of his problems would be to keep his austerity program within the qualifications of doing a good service job too.

"My main contention is that the people of the United States and the people of Pennsylvania want more and more services from the government," Scranton declared.

"The problem is that in building up these services over a period of time, in the bigness of government, both federal and state, we have been reluctant to make thorough-going analyses to cut out functions which are no longer necessary and do a thorough-going cutting job from that standpoint year in and year out."

"This is something which I intend to press for the whole four years that I'm here . . ."

Scranton said he hopes to submit his budget to the legislature within the next two weeks, possibly March 26.

Accuses Democrats

The governor also accused Democrats of indulging in what he called "obstructionist tactics" in blocking the administration's proposed plan to establish a policy making state board of education.

"I think it clearly was an attempt to hold things up," Scranton declared, commenting on Democratic refusal in the Senate Tuesday night to yield a single vote for his plan to establish a policy making state board of education.

With two of their members absent, Republicans were unable to muster the required constitutional majority to pass the legislation.

Scranton indicated he expects the measure to be recalled and passed next week when the full GOP delegation is on hand.

Criticizes Speech

On the House floor Wednesday Arends angrily brandished a wire service story of a speech McNamara made before the Advertising Council and said the defense secretary was wrong in taking his criticism as a personal attack.

"Now he says we're picking on him," Arends said, adding that he would have more to say later.

McNamara told the Advertising Council, "The budget submitted by the chiefs of staff and the service secretaries totaled $67 billion. I took $14 billion out of that."

This drew loud applause from the businessmen in the audience, one of whom had just praised McNamara for his cost-cutting activities.

Tough Problems

McNamara added, "If I don't do it, who's going to? I shouldn't turn over all the tough problems to the President. I turn over enough already."

He noted that House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana had predicted a $3-billion cut in defense spending for fiscal 1964.

"A member of Mr. Halleck's party—Arends—has approved an increase of $1 billion," McNamara said, "and now they've got to cut $4 billion."

While charge and countercharge boomed back and forth between McNamara and Arends, the defense secretary also was involved in another controversy.

A statement from McNamara was read before the Senate Investigations subcommittee flatly contradicting testimony that military evaluation favored a different design from the one selected for a multipurpose fighter plane known as the TFX.

McNamara, former president of the Ford Motor Co., told the business executives attending the Advertising Council's 19th Washington conference that by 1965 savings through better management of procurement and logistics in the Defense Department would total $3.4 billion each year.

Halfway To Goal

"We're halfway there already," he said, adding that savings are going to be bigger than first anticipated.

"And no one can put a dollar sign on the increase in efficiency with which we plan our weapons programs and forces strategy," McNamara said.

Meanwhile, Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., a senior member of the House Armed Services Committee, told the House that Congress should back the military and assert its authority over the Defense Department.

Back 'Professionals'

Hebert said he would back the military professionals "in preference to the striplings who are the geniuses in the intellectual community and have never heard a shot fired in anger."

Chinese Communists Invite Khrushchev To Conference

MOSCOW (AP)—Mao Tse-tung has invited Premier Khrushchev to Peking to discuss their differences "on a footing of real equality."

At the same time, the Chinese Communists . . . suspend their attacks on Khrushchev's leadership. Thousands of angry words have flowed like a torrent from Peking in the past few weeks in the dispute threatening to split the world Communist movement.

But the Chinese showed no signs of giving in on their demands that the Kremlin drop its talk of peaceful coexistence with the West and push sternly ahead in the drive to communize the world regardless of risks of nuclear war.

Conference Suggested

The suggestion for a summit conference of the leaders of the two largest Communist powers was announced Wednesday by the official news agency Tass. It was contained in a letter, dated March 8, from the Chinese party to the Soviet Communist Central Committee.

There was no indication that Khrushchev had accepted the invitation and the Chinese note seemed to say Mao would not come to Moscow. But it said a delegation might be sent here.

While the letter was from the Chinese Communist party Central Committee, a Peking broadcast said the Khrushchev visit was first broached by Mao on Feb. 28 at a meeting with Soviet Ambassador Stepan Chervonenko.

The Chinese leader suggested that Khrushchev stop off in Peking en route to Cambodia. Khrushchev is expected to visit that Southeast Asian nation this spring.

Alternate Offered

The letter said: "If this is not convenient for you (Khrushchev), the Central Committee of the CPSU (Communist party of the Soviet Union) can send to Peking a delegation headed by another responsible comrade, or we can send a delegation to Moscow."

Westerners here believe that for settlement of the dispute Khrushchev and Mao will have to meet face to face. Anything lower than that level would offer little hope of settling the quarrel, they said.

The Chinese suggested that after the Mao-Khrushchev summit meeting all Communist nations be called into a conference.

U.S. Denies Red Charge Of Ship Firing On Trawler

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States flatly denied Wednesday night that any U.S. naval vessel fired on a Soviet fishing ship last Friday 70 miles east of Norfolk, Va., as Moscow charged earlier Wednesday.

A statement issued by the State Department after a day-long investigation said there was naval firing practice within the area east of Norfolk but that the nearest surface ship was 12 miles away.

The statement replied to a Moscow protest charging that three U.S. warships fired dummy shells at a Soviet Trawler. The protest denounced the firing as "an act of sheer wantonness which could have grave consequences."

The U.S. statement said:

"A thorough investigation has positively established that the Soviet protest of an alleged firing of a U.S. naval vessel on a Soviet trawler 70 miles east of Norfolk on March 5 is without foundation."

The statement did not identify the surface ship which it described as having been in the general area and a state department spokesman said he did not know whether it was a Soviet vessel.

But the statement asserted that anti-aircraft ammunition being used by the nearest destroyer had a maximum range of seven miles, which it said was five miles short of the distance to the surface ship.

The State Department said the facts of what happened are these: "The position at which the Soviet Union has charged the U.S. Navy with firing on a Soviet trawler last Friday is located within an established and recognized U.S. Navy operations area."

"On the day in question—March 5—U.S. naval vessels, none of which were cruisers, were in the area. Six U.S. Navy destroyers fired gunnery exercises in this area on March 8."

"The ship nearest the location of the alleged incident fires an anti-aircraft practice at a towed slave target."

"At the time of the firing this ship was 10 miles southwest from the position which the Soviet Union reports was the location of the incident. The ship fired in an easterly and westerly direction with ammunition which has a seven-mile maximum range."

"No surface vessel was within 12 miles of the firing ship before and during the firing. The clearance of the range was confirmed by the target-towing aircraft. Weather conditions were clear."

"At no time did this vessel or any other U.S. naval vessel in the general area fire when any surface vessel or aircraft could be in danger."

Formal Reply Planned

State Department press officer Lincoln White said a formal reply, along the lines of the statement, will be made to the Soviet protest.

Another informed source had said earlier that a lone U.S. destroyer did engage in anti-aircraft firing practice off the Virginia Capes on March 8 but that there wasn't a Soviet ship anywhere in its firing area.

Lenten Meditation

By Rev. L. W. Drury, Pastor Pilgrim Holiness Church

Mark 15:21 "And they compel one Simon a Cyrenian, who passed by, to bear His cross."

Jesus fell beneath the weight of the material cross, but it was the weight of the spiritual cross that had weakened Him. Mark says, "And they compel one Simon a Cyrenian who passed by, to bear His cross."

Simon little knew that he was earning the right to immortal fame when he carried the cross of Jesus. It is only those who bear the cross who have the right to eternal life. To be baptized with His baptism gives the right to sit on the right hand.

"They who come up out of great tribulation wear the white robes. 'If we suffer with Him we shall reign with Him.'"

It was because Simon was near Jesus that they laid the cross on him. It is only those who walk near Christ that are called to bear the cross.

If we walk afar off we shall not be troubled with cross-bearing. We can escape the cross by denying the Christ.

A stranger "coming out of the country" suffers the shame. It is said that Simon was a slave. The cross to the Jew and Roman was a degrading thing, fit only for the slave to carry.

Paul, the man who delighted in the cross, loved to call himself the slave of Jesus.

We must be identified with our Lord in His crucifixion and shame if we are to share His glory. One has said, "The world is made up of two classes, those who bear the cross and the rest."

It is the cross that marks us off from the world, that identifies us with Christ; and it is the cross that will crucify us unto the world and the world unto us. The man who bears the cross is easily picked out from the crowd.

It would be interesting to know how Simon felt and whether it is true that he became a disciple of Christ. Did he bear it gladly?—for, unless we bear the cross cheerfully, without murmur or complaint, we bear it without virtue or reward. Yea, we must go deeper and glory in the cross before its power becomes apparent in our lives.

Westminster Choir Here Tonight

THE Touring Choir of Westminster Choir College, Princeton, N. J., under the direction of Warren Martin, will present a program of medieval and modern choral work tonight at 8 p. m. in the East Stroudsburg State College auditorium.

The choral group is sponsored by the Community Concert Association.

The program will open with a Christmas cantata of the baroque period by Dietrich Buxtehude. This selection is for chorus with three violins and continuo.

Latin Church Music of the early and late renaissance will be next on the program. Representative composers will be Pierre de la Rue, Giovanni de Palestrina, Carlo di Venosa, and Jan Sweelinck.

Aaron Copland's "In the Beginning" will be next, a modern choral work based on Genesis. After the intermission, a series of French Rondeaux of the 13th Century by Adam de la Halle will be presented.

More rondeaux and chansons of the 16th Century by de Wert and Goudard will be next, then of the early 20th Century by Claude Debussy and Ravel.

Opera of the classical era will be represented by selections from La Cenerentola by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.

Ralph Vaughan Williams' selections and Frederick Delius' choral arrangements will be the finale of the concert.

The chorus is composed of 40 outstanding students from the Westminster choir.

Officials Watch Allegheny River

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A possibility that damaging floods could occur on the Allegheny River remains, but no immediate flood threat exists, Vernon Houghton Jr. said Wednesday.

"Everything is dominant on the Allegheny," said Houghton, the chief river forecaster for Western Pennsylvania. "The situation looks much better than it did Tuesday."

A heavy ice cover remains in place, and there has been no general rise in the Allegheny, Houghton said.

A temporary lull came, the forecaster added, when expected heavy rain failed to materialize in the river's watershed and temperatures did not rise high enough to cause much runoff from melting snow.

Pointing to weather forecasts of relatively cold temperatures for the area Thursday, Houghton said the immediate outlook is very good.

The problem, however, continues to be the way the ice pack and the snow cover along the upper Allegheny come off.

Veteran Of Drug Industry Sees:

Diseases Dwindling Rapidly

By JEFF COX
Daily Record Reporter

DISEASES which 40 years ago struck fear into susceptible persons around the world today are dwindling at a rapid rate. The threat from polio, diabetes, tuberculosis, pneumonia, to name a few, is fast receding. Advances in drugs have been born in laboratories and manufactured by the big drug houses.

Schieffelin and Co., the oldest drug firm in America, was one of these drug houses. It shocked the industry this month when it announced plans to quit the drug wholesaling business.

The company had been in continuous operation since 1794 under the Schieffelin family—169 years—and for the last 29 years had employed John C. Glasson of Stroudsburg.

Glasson had been a company salesman in this region since 1930, and was employed by the firm in New York for six years before that.

He retired this year—and the old drug firm decided to close its warehouse doors soon after. Glasson's territory was chiefly northwestern New Jersey and the borderline of eastern Pennsylvania, where he sold wholesale drugs to retail stores. The Flagler Drug Store in Stroudsburg was one of his customers. Reminiscing, Glasson recalled the advances in prevention and curative drugs made in the last 40 years.

Started During Epidemic
He began work with a wholesale drug house in Scranton during the extensive flu epidemic of 1919.

The only available drugs used to fight the influenza then were aspirin, acetophenetidin, quinine and codeine. Aside from these drugs, the largest-selling patent remedies were Vicks VapoRub, Humphrey's No. 77, Nuxated Iron, gum camphor, and asafetida bags.

These bags were worn around the neck to ward off the bugs. "In 1923," Glasson recalled, "the biggest thing to hit the drug market in the history of the country was insulin. The price was prohibitive, with a 40-unit vial selling for $5. Today the price is much less."

Glasson went to New York to work for Schieffelin that year, and liver injectable became the new rage of the drug industry. Medicines for heart ailments also arrived at that time.

During a great flood in Wilkes-Barre during the 1930's, Glasson serviced that area with drugs.

When the flood of 1955 hit the Stroudsburgs, Glasson was prepared for the emergency. He knew the drugs that were needed to combat sickness resulting from contamination and contacted Howard Flagler Jr., of Flagler's Drug Store.

"I got on the phone," said Glasson, "reached by New York office through Chicago and placed an order for pharmaceuticals." He noted that a special delivery truck ran straight to the drug store. The first truckload contained a lot of Lysol, he recalled—the contents were almost a duplicate of the drugs ordered in the thirties.

Sulfa drugs were developed in the early thirties, he said, and were the precursors of the modern wonder drugs.

Next came the antihistamines used to combat allergies. He recalled some rather wide claims made by some firms for this drug.

Useful For Anything
Advertising said that the drug was useful for anything "from ingrown toenails to pyorrhea."

Vitamins were another advancement in that depression decade. The possibilities of vitamins were not realized before that time, Glasson said.

Then, in the late 1930's, penicillin was brought out. It was the first of the antibiotics, and slashed pneumonia from the rogues gallery of national killers.

Other antibiotics followed the advent of penicillin—a far superior group according to Glasson. They were used to combat streptococcus, syphilis, and other diseases.

Tuberculosis was dealt a blow by INH—an isoniazid—which appeared in the 1940's. It reduced the population in the tuberculosis sanitariums by half.

With the advent of reserpine—for high blood pressure—and the Salk polio vaccine, great strides have been made in the last two decades also.

Through the efforts of the drug industry and the medical laboratories which ruthlessly seek to kill diseases, a great burden of fear has been lifted from the shoulders of a fragile mankind.

E-Burg Man Cherishes Memories Of Past

By Jim Shafer
Daily Record Reporter

"I HAVE possessions from all parts of the world I have visited. Now that I'm retired I have the time to sit back and look them over again and recollect incidents involving each item," said Giles H. Burlingame yesterday as he proudly showed many of his treasures in his home.

Burlingame, of East Stroudsburg, is a retired printer. He has worked at his trade for more than 50 years. He came to Monroe County in 1913 after selling a business in Scranton, taking employment with the Hughes Printing Co. It was from Hughes, Burlingame retired five years ago.

Burlingame has been active for many years in the area war veteran circles. Tonight he will present the George N. Kemp Post 346, American Legion, East Stroudsburg, with a framed copy of The Bayonet Point, Vol. I, No. 1.

He said, "I have been contacted by several men from the state department of the American Legion asking for a copy of the first issue, but I have told them I was going to present it to the local post."

One of Original Three

Burlingame was one of the three men who originally formed the national guard unit in East Stroudsburg. The other two men were Capt. George Dunning and C. B. Altmore.

From his tour with the guard unit in Europe during World War I he has many items. One that he believes to be the only one left is an array of five posters that were posted inside the "40 & 8" box-cars in France.

Famous Quotes

One of the posters declares, "Your head may be hard but not as hard as bridge and tunnel arches. Only six inches clearance. Don't ride on top or outside the cars. Railway Co. will hold you responsible for damages to bridges, tunnels, and signal towers — They are not insured. Keep your block inside."

He smiled as he read it and said, "I guess there were many area fellows who saw and read these signs. Perhaps they will now smile about them."

Another cherished possession is a series of pictures taken while the guard unit was stationed on active duty on the Mexican border. "That's Pvt. Charles 'Butter' Nevel with Pvt. Montgomery Crowe. The picture shows the two local men while on leave in a nearby Mexican town," Burlingame said.

He also has the first copy of the program presented by B.P.O. Elks 319, East Stroudsburg when they opened the Plaza Theatre in East Stroudsburg. "The Elks had a minstrel. The end men were Hinky Hughes, John Pick, Herman Brenner and Red Gallery. The interlocutor was Judge Samuel Shull. As an artist Burlingame has many pictures hanging in his home. They are of various nature — all erupting with color. He used his ability as an artist while serving with the Army in World War I. He made the first drawing of several German hand grenades which were later used for instructional purposes by the 28th Division.

Burlingame recalled as if it were only yesterday when Gene

Tunney was initiated into the 40 & 8 unit in East Stroudsburg.

Tunney's Training

"Tunney was training at Glen Brook Country Club for his heavy-weight championship fight with Jack Dempsey. Several of the members of the local 40 & 8 learned that he had some free time and they invited him to join the organization. He served with the Marine Corps during the war."

Burlingame still holds interest in civic affairs. He is the man responsible for listing the names of all men from Monroe County who served in the armed forces during World War I. They are on a memorial in front of the American Legion, East Stroudsburg.

Knights Set To Exemplify

THE FATHER Butler Council 4084 Knights of Columbus will exemplify the second degree on a class of candidates Monday at 8 p.m. in the K of C Home, Stroudsburg.

Grand Knight James Ogden will present the class, which has been named the James Coleman Class, in honor of the past grand knight. The class will receive the third degree on April 21.

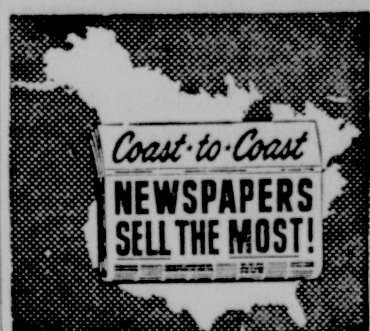

Building Firm Listed On NYSE

NEW YORK (AP)—The common stock of Uris Buildings Corp., which currently has $150 million in office buildings under construction in mid-New York, was listed yesterday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The first trade was a block of 500 shares at $18.75. The ticker symbol is URB. The stock was formerly traded over the counter.

The firm, an investment builder, owns several buildings in New York, two buildings in Philadelphia's Penn Center Plaza and half interest in a hotel being constructed in Washington.

Truth About Profits

The American public's lack of knowledge concerning industrial profits and their influence on the well-being of us all can only be described as shocking.

The chief officer of a leading company dealt with this in a recent talk. He finds that the American public believes that profits after taxes of the typical manufacturing company amount to 20 per cent of the sales; that 58 per cent of the public feels that the profits should be reduced to help keep prices from rising; and that 43 per cent favor Federal Government control of large company profits.

What is truth of the matter? It is this: All the profits after taxes earned by all corporations in the United States in 1961—and this includes profits which were reinvested in the business as well as profits distributed to shareholders—did not even equal the fringe benefits paid on behalf of the employees.

The U.S. Department of Commerce is the authority for this. Its figures show that "supplements to wages and salaries"—which is its term for fringe benefits—amounted to over $23 billion in that year and this did not count the paid vacations and holidays which constitute the most expensive fringe benefits of all. By way of contrast, total corporate after-tax profits were $51 million less.

Perhaps the best way to look at profits is as a per cent of national income. The share which profits, after taxes, represent declined 41 per cent over a recent 15 year period, and during the past five years has equaled about 6 per cent of the income.

On the other hand, the share of national income going to employees rose 9 per cent in those 15 years, and in the past five years wages, salaries and supplementary benefits have claimed an average of 70 per cent of national income.

Profits are necessary to create better plants and facilities, create goods and services, provide jobs, encourage saving and investment and provide this nation with the economic strength and growth on which freedom and security depend.

Seat Belts Advance A Notch

Our State Legislature has before it this session two different approaches to encourage the use of automobile seat belts:

In the House, several bills have been introduced that would make the belts, or at least anchor holes, mandatory.

In the Senate, Sen. Clarence Bell has introduced a resolution that would urge the major auto producers to make seat belts standard equipment in next year's models and thereafter.

Either way, Pennsylvania has an opportunity to add its name to the growing list of states that have realized the effectiveness of seat belts and have added the weight of legislative action to support their belief that this safety device can save lives and cut down injuries.

Now that Studebaker has announced the balance of its '63 model cars and next year's models will have seat belts as standard equipment, the other companies are expected to follow suit. When the 1964 models hit the showrooms, they all should have seat belts already installed. Even before Studebaker's action, the auto industry has been talking in terms of '64 or '65 as a target date for doing this.

While this voluntary action by the industry is encouraging, the increasing number of state requiring seat belts in new cars obviously provided an extra push. Undoubtedly, the auto manufacturers are aware of the proven safety benefits of seat belts. But since they've reneged on their voluntary pledge not to stress speed, horsepower and race results in their new-car promotions, it's clear that some legislative impetus by the states also is needed.

There are distinct benefits to having the seat belts come with the new cars. Factory installation on all models brings the price down and guarantees that a good-quality belt is being used. Already, in the infant seat-belt industry, there have been reports of substandard equipment being palmed off on the public. Also, by guaranteeing that every new car from here on out has seat belts, it should take less than a decade to get vehicles without the belts off the highway—even if no more pre-1963 auto owners buy the belts on their own.

Pennsylvania should add its support to this advance in auto safety either by urging the auto industry to follow Studebaker's lead or by requiring them to do so under State law.

Getting the belts into the automobiles won't prevent a single accident. But Pennsylvanians who wear them will have a far better chance to escape serious harm.

The Right To Live

Businessmen, so I am convinced, are the salt of the earth. They assume all the risks that go with creating the goods and providing the jobs that keep people alive. They accept crushing taxes, and they dutifully fill out reams of onerous forms. Whenever a businessman is called a "robber baron," I automatically bridle at the insult.

There are times, however, when specific businessmen desert their own free enterprise philosophy, and when they do this it is hard to speak up convincingly in defense of the system which has made the whole nation prosper.

If there is one thing a businessman should bend over backward to do, it is to give his competitor a free field with the expectation that no favors will be asked either way. The philosophy of competition demands it; the business system as a whole needs it if it is to put up any convincing argument against Socialism.

Yet, every day, it seems, the newspapers are spotted with accounts of the attempts of a few businessmen to get a law or a regulation adopted which would make it more difficult for their rivals to bid for the customers' trade.

There are the truckers, for example — not all the truckers, but some of them. Through their trade association truckers have been calling upon the Federal government to prevent railroad mergers. The railroads rightly retort that government regulation has already stacked the cards against them in their efforts to compete for the carrying trade of the country.

They argue quite correctly that mergers should be permitted in order to help them stay a live. But just when I have worked up some indignation against the truckers and a corresponding measure of sympathy for the railroads, my eye lights on a speech or a resolution put forth by some railway spokesman calling for the suppression of coal strike pipelines.

The coal men, of course, insist upon the right to pulverize coal and ship it through pipes in a liquefied form. Well, they certainly should have the right; pipelines are part of a free enterprise economy, and the railroads have no call to try to use legal force to sabotage them.

But just when I am about to mount the intellectual barricades in behalf of the coal slurry men, my roving eye encounters a news story about coal men who are demanding that the government tighten up the regulations against the importation of foreign residual fuel oil.

So it goes, ring-around-the-rosy. Everybody seems to be demanding free trade for himself and the suppression of everybody else. Theatre owners march on Washington to testify against the licensing of pay-as-you-see TV systems.

The free lance dealers in commercial credit call upon the Department of Justice to force General Motors to divest itself of its big car credit affiliate, the General Motors Acceptance Corporation.

Labor unions interpose no objections when the anti-trust enforcers go after the manufacturers of brass goods or electrical equipment. But their spokesmen descend as a body on Washington to lobby against any proposition that might put industry-wide unions under the same anti-trust regulations that apply to everyone else.

Not so many years ago Hans Isbrandtsen, the Danish-American ship line operator, had the bright idea of putting the United States, his adopted country, back into the whaling business. He bought an old U.S. Navy vessel and had it converted into a floating whale oil rendering factory. Unfortunately, he let a foreign oil tanker replenish his ship's fuel supply off the coast of Antarctica. The foreign oil tanker, to enable Isbrandtsen's crew to stay longer on the whaling grounds, loaded up in turn with some of Mr. Isbrandtsen's American-processed whale oil and tried to bring it into an American port.

Thus it goes when one industry invokes the power of the government to suppress another. But with everybody invoking the "law" to clobber his competitors, just who is safe?

A Merger That Can Be Disastrous

The Pennsylvania Story

Legislative Musical Chairs

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — The game of "legislative musical chairs" has become quite a sport on Pennsylvania's Capitol Hill these days.

The object on the part of the Keystone State's 260 lawmakers of course is to see who can escape being eliminated in reapportionment of the State House of Representatives and the State Senate.

Such realignment of seats — 210 in the House and 50 in the Senate — seems fairly well assured this year inasmuch as Pennsylvania's courts are holding off on taxpayer suits (to force reapportionment) to see whether the Legislature acts this year or not.

Realignment of legislative seats (on the basis of population shifts as mandated by the State Constitution following each U.S. Census) has not taken place in the case of the House of Representatives since 1957 — and in the case of the Senate, not since 1921!

As to what will be done on the score this session, House Majority Floor Leader Albert W. Johnson, whose GOP Party also holds control in the Senate and the Governor's Office, commented to this column the other day:

"Oh, we're going to pass reapportionment sometime this session. It's one of our 'must' pieces on our schedule — but when it will be done and what it will look like in its final form, we just don't know as yet."

Hence the game of almost continual legislative musical chairs — with virtually every lawmaker fighting to avoid having his own particular district on the schedule of those to be eliminated.

The trouble isn't so much any loss of the total number of seats in either chamber — in fact the State Constitution requires that the Senate shall comprise 50 seats, that is, 50 senatorial districts.

On the other hand the House has no set number of seats, although every county must have at least one representative regardless of population. Under terms of the somewhat complicated formula spelled out in the Constitution for the House though, the net number of seats in the House will be reduced by one—from 210 to 209.

Even this loss of one seat isn't the critical item. What is critical is the realignment of the Senate and House seats on an equitable and contemporary population basis as per the 1960 census.

In a nutshell in the case of the House, it will mean an apparent gain of 12 seats for some counties — and the loss of 13 for others.

Just "who" is going to lose is the critical item.

A few haphazard reapportionment bills have been introduced already which generally call for elimination of seats in one section — sponsored by lawmakers who live in quite another section!

In the case of the Senate, matters are a little more complicated by the fact that in contrast to the House where all members are up for re-election every two years, only half of the 50-member Senate comes up for filing every two years. This in effect means that the upper chamber will almost have to be reapportioned in installments!

Illustrative of some of the significant shifts in population between the 1950 and 1960 nose counts — which should mean loss or gain of House seats — are these counties:

Allegheny County at present has 28 House seats — but gained 113,350 in population. Fayette County with its present four seats, lost 20,559 in population. Whopping big Philadelphia with 39 seats had its population dwindle by 69,093. Lackawanna County with a current five seats lost 22,955 people. Bucks County with a current three seats gained a booming 163,947 in population, while Montgomery County with a current six-seat delegation gained an almost equal number of 163,014.

The game of legislative musical chairs becomes more frustrating with each passing week!

The Allen-Scott Report

Bobby Kennedy's Judicial Choices Strictly Political

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, March 14 — Attorney General Robert Kennedy has a distinctly utilitarian approach when it comes to selecting federal judges.

Politics is the basic measuring rod of the President's 37-year-old brother.

If a prospective appointee is for the administration, he's got it made. If he isn't, regardless of his qualifications, he's cooked.

Senator Gaylord Nelson learned this significant lesson in a revealing discussion with Bobby. This meeting in itself was quite an achievement. It took the former two-term Wisconsin governor nearly three weeks to get in to see the youthful Attorney General.

During that period, while too busy to talk to Nelson, Bobby had time to make a widely-publicized 50-mile hike, and to go skiing in New Hampshire. It was during that pleasure jaunt that his 33-year-old brother, Senator Ted Kennedy, got into an altercation with a news photographer — which he denied and subsequently publicly apologized for when threatened with a suit.

In striking contrast to Bobby's long delay in seeing Nelson, were the White House's urgent pleas last year that he rush to Washington to help put over the President's controversial farm bill. Each time, Nelson dropped his own gubernatorial problems and responded at once.

The President and Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman were warmly appreciative. But Bobby acted as if he had never heard of it.

Strictly Quid Pro Quo — Senator Nelson is strongly advocating the appointment of James Doyle, leading Madison, Wis., attorney, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Federal District Judge Patrick Stone.

That is being opposed by State Democratic Chairman Patrick Lucey, who has long been feuding with Nelson. Lucey is urging the selection of either National Committeeman David Robinson or John DeWitt.

In the talk with Bobby, Nelson stressed two points: That Doyle is the best qualified for the job, and that this appointment would help the President in 1964.

"In every respect," said Nelson, "Doyle would make a worthy replacement of Judge Stone. He has outstanding ability and character, and his selection would be widely popular throughout this district, where he is very well known and regarded."

"But why should we appoint him?" retorted Bobby. "Doyle fought us in the (1960) Wisconsin primary, and again at the Los Angeles convention. He was 100 per cent for Stevenson, and stayed with him to the bitter end. He showed clearly he is no friend of ours."

"It's been my understanding," said Nelson, "that in making appointments to the federal bench you pick the best qualified man. Doyle is unquestionably that in every respect, personally, professionally, and politically if you insist on bringing that in. If this appointment is to be made on a political basis, he is still your best man."

"How do you figure that?" demanded Bobby.

"The President could lose Dane County (Doyle's home) next year. In 1960 the President carried the county by only 4,000, while Representative Kastenmeier swept it by more than 15,000," pointed out Nelson. "Doyle is highly respected in the county, and his appointment as Judge Stone's successor would unquestionably be a big help to the President."

Grudgingly, Bobby said he would give the matter "further consideration," and that's where it rests.

At a dinner attended by publicity-conscious Postmaster General Day, Nelson deftly rapped his knuckles. Day had been asked to say grace, and when Nelson was called on for "a few remarks," he quipped:

"Mr. Postmaster General, your grace was well done, short and to the point. Your message got to us far more quickly than the mail is being delivered these days."

Day joined tepidly in the roar of laughter that greeted this bullseye sally.

Attorney General Kennedy is worried about his apparent loss of popularity with the Irish. Last year he had more than 150 invitations to speak on St. Patrick's Day. This year they number less than 10.

Politics — Michigan's Governor George Romney scored one of the biggest laughs at the Gridiron dinner with the following: "If I were elected President and followed President Kennedy's policy of giving jobs to relatives, the press would really have something to write about. I have 24 first cousins. You see, some of the early members of my family had as many as eight wives." Romney is a Mormon.

Representative John Shelley is making strenuous efforts to persuade the President to put in a plug for his campaign as mayor of San Francisco when the President visits Los Angeles next month. Dr. Johnson says: What Makes An Alcoholic?

The making of an alcoholic — whether the cause is purely emotional, purely physiological, or a combination of both — remains an uncertain process. Nobody has really proved anything about chronic alcoholism except that alcoholics drink.

Unquestionably however, the alcoholic is basically a person who suffers from an unstable personality. Doctors cannot and do not prescribe a drink for an unstable person and certainly not for one who may have a disease for which an alcoholic drink would be tantamount to poison. They often do prescribe a single, before-dinner drink for the normal, healthy person who will suffer no ill effects from it and who can benefit emotionally from the little extra luxury afforded by relaxation at a time when it may be needed most.

In short we honor practically every student who should be honored for his or her gains throughout their scholastic careers.

Why not honor those who never get a drink? Don't they have a place in the sun? Aren't they part of our educational system?

Today this column tosses its bouquets to those who try but never quite make it into the so-called select group.

They definitely have a place in the scholastic plant. While they may cause more concern and worry than their counterparts, the also-ran is the same boy and girl who keeps the school system going. Without these Cs, Ds and Fs teachers would have the monotonous task of offering advice only to Bs and As.

These often-referred-to border-line pupils keep the teacher on his or her toes. If it wasn't for these kids who try so hard to learn so little, instructors would go on their merry way and run out of material before the year's end.

There is an old saying, "you can never tell a book by its cover." This quote applies to the ones never honored. Some day these lads and lassies will mark the mark that indicates that a non-honoring school career is not the only fault in one's life.

The next time you read an honor roll, scan a contest winners list, hear praises of this boy and that girl, remember the other 80 per cent who didn't quite make it.

Remember, too, without us fellows there wouldn't be you fellows.

Our Queer World:

Judge H. G. Brown, in Milwaukee, on Monday ruled that a 28-year-old mother of six illegitimate children with four fathers, was not guilty of neglect because she was not married. "The children seem to have been a normal, happy family group with mutual interests and affections, except for the absence of a father," said Judge Brown. The Judge implied that this was not so much a case of neglect as one of oversight.

an altercation with a news photographer — which he denied and subsequently publicly apologized for when threatened with a suit.

In striking contrast to Bobby's long delay in seeing Nelson, were the White House's urgent pleas last year that he rush to Washington to help put over the President's controversial farm bill. Each time, Nelson dropped his own gubernatorial problems and responded at once.

The President and Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman were warmly appreciative. But Bobby acted as if he had never heard of it.

Strictly Quid Pro Quo — Senator Nelson is strongly advocating the appointment of James Doyle, leading Madison, Wis., attorney, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Federal District Judge Patrick Stone.

That is being opposed by State Democratic Chairman Patrick Lucey, who has long been feuding with Nelson. Lucey is urging the selection of either National Committeeman David Robinson or John DeWitt.

In the talk with Bobby, Nelson stressed two points: That Doyle is the best qualified for the job, and that this appointment would help the President in 1964.

"In every respect," said Nelson, "Doyle would make a worthy replacement of Judge Stone. He has outstanding ability and character, and his selection would be widely popular throughout this district, where he is very well known and regarded."

"But why should we appoint him?" retorted Bobby. "Doyle fought us in the (1960) Wisconsin primary, and again at the Los Angeles convention. He was 100 per cent for Stevenson, and stayed with him to the bitter end. He showed clearly he is no friend of ours."

"It's been my understanding," said Nelson, "that in making appointments to the federal bench you pick the best qualified man. Doyle is unquestionably that in every respect, personally, professionally, and politically if you insist on bringing that in. If this appointment is to be made on a political basis, he is still your best man."

"How do you figure that?" demanded Bobby.

"The President could lose Dane County (Doyle's home) next year. In 1960 the President carried the county by only 4,000, while Representative Kastenmeier swept it by more than 15,000," pointed out Nelson. "Doyle is highly respected in the county, and his appointment as Judge Stone's successor would unquestionably be a big help to the President."

Grudgingly, Bobby said he would give the matter "further consideration," and that's where it rests.

At a dinner attended by publicity-conscious Postmaster General Day, Nelson deftly rapped his knuckles. Day had been asked to say grace, and when Nelson was called on for "a few remarks," he quipped:

"Mr. Postmaster General, your grace was well done, short and to the point. Your message got to us far more quickly than the mail is being delivered these days."

Day joined tepidly in the roar of laughter that greeted this bullseye sally.

Dear Abby

Accept Her As Is

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 and my brother is 18 and our problem is our mother. She is the sweetest, best-natured, most adorable little mother but she has such poor taste in clothes that sometimes we are embarrassed for her. She's a little plump but refuses to wear a girdle because it's uncomfortable. Every dress she owns has a full skirt or lots of pleats. When she goes to church, women's club meetings or an afternoon tea she always wears rhinestone ear screws and a rhinestone necklace. I've told her that rhinestones are for after five, and not for older women, but she says she LIKES rhinestones! I even show her pictures of fashion magazines, but she's not impressed. We hate to hurt her feelings, but want her to look nice. How?

LOVING DAUGHTER

DEAR LOVING DAUGHTER: If you have suggested improvements and pointed out smartly dressed women in fashion magazines and your mother remains "unimpressed" accept her for what she is! A sweet, good-natured, adorable little mother who loves rhinestones, pleated skirts and comfort. And don't be embarrassed.

DEAR ABBY: Recently a man signed FLOIDA wrote to you saying he was 67 years old and wanted a wife about 48 or 50. What makes him think he is entitled to a woman that young? If that's the way he figures, a man 25 years old wouldn't want a girl over six! These old rascals give me a pain. Why can't a 67-year-old man be satisfied with a 65-year-old woman? Confidentially, I think women hold their age better than men anyway.

A YOUNG WOMAN OF 65

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think this is too silly to answer because I have been trying to find the answer to this question for a long time and you are my only hope. Does the groom carry the bride through the door of the motel on their honeymoon? Or is it the door of the apartment or house where they are going to live that she gets carried through?

DEAR CURIOUS: Traditionally, the groom carries the bride over the threshold of their home. But let's face it — once a bride, who cares?

PM Board Asked To Foot Band Bill

SWIFTWATER—The Pocono Mountain Band Parents Association last night asked the Pocono Mountain Joint School Board for $4,600 toward the purchase of band uniforms which are expected to cost $5,600.

The request was taken under advisement and no action was taken.

In other business, Allen Shollenberger was hired as head

Troop B Now Tank Company

TROOP B, 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 9th Cavalry, 79th Infantry Division, is no more.

The old Stroudsburg reserve unit got a face lifting in February, and is now a tank company, with authorization for 17 tanks at full strength.

The change was part of a move on the part of the Defense Department to renovate the reserves.

The new unit title is Co. A, 6th Tank Battalion, 68th Armor, 15th Infantry Division. The Stroudsburgs now own two Co. A's, but the reserve unit in Stroudsburg is USAR.

USAR—United States Army Reserve—is distinguished from the National Guard—NGUS—in a number of ways.

The governor of the state in which the Guard unit is located is the commander of that state's National Guard.

The United States Army Reserve is a direct part of the Army, is a federal rather than a state organization, and partakes of no state funds.

The governor of a state has the power to call up the Guard, whereas Washington must decide to call the reserves to active duty.

A reservist spends six months on active duty, and is then sent to his home unit to fulfill his reserve obligation.

Meetings for the Stroudsburg unit are held in the Bank Alley subcenter behind the Colonial Diner.

At present, persons who have not joined the armed forces may sign up at the unit on meeting nights—usually Thursday nights. Multiple drills are held on Sundays. The equivalent of four meetings per month is required.

As a tank outfit, openings are available for tank mechanics and other operators.

67 Men

Current strength of the unit is 67 men, two under the authorized strength of 69. There is an opening for one officer and one enlisted man, with openings for enlisted men opening up all the time as men complete their obligation.

The company is authorized 17 tank crews and 17 M48 tanks. The mission of a tank company is to progress in support of the infantry and work in tank-to-tank type warfare.

On meeting nights, classes are held on tank strategy and tactics, as well as the essential skills of a soldier.

Upon joining the unit, men are scheduled for active duty, usually at Fort Knox, Ky. Fort Knox is the home of armor, and one of the largest posts in the United States.

The total population of Fort Knox, including civilians, is about 65,000 persons. There are many movie theaters, golf courses, snack bars and other activities for both enlisted men and officers.

After basic training among Knox's rugged hills, the trainee is sent to an armored training company in USATCA—the United States Army Training Center, Armor.

After eight weeks in the training company, he is sent to perform on-the-job work with another company. After six months, the qualified soldier returns to take his place in the operation of the company.

Fort Knox is 30 miles from Louisville, Ky., a city of almost 400,000 people.

Camp Pickett-Bound

Co. A takes its summer training this year at Camp Pickett, Va., where skills in tanks are sharpened. This year the training period is the last two weeks in August.

Capt. Francis R. Regan of Tobyhanna is the company commander of the new tank unit; Donald M. Smith is first sergeant.

Stroudsburg Woman's In-Law

MRS. HARRIET E. OWENS, of 1820 Clydesdale Place, Washington, D. C., died recently at the Providence Hospital there.

She was the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Frank Butler, of Washington, D. C. She had been paralyzed by poliomyelitis almost her entire life.

She is survived by her husband, Charles; one daughter, Mary, at home; one sister, Lillian Biggs, Washington, D. C.; two brothers, Paul and Frank, both of Washington, D. C.

The funeral was held in the Hyson funeral home, 1300 N. St., N. W., Washington, D. C. She was the daughter-in-law of Mrs. Elwood Palmer, Stroudsburg.

basketball coach and Wayne Boyd was selected as head football coach. Shollenberger for many years was the head football coach. He replaces Harry Werkheiser as court mentor.

The board approved $90 to send Justin Feltham to a National Science Teachers' Association in Philadelphia.

The Educational Excellence Committee reported that Miss Alice Finnerty, head of the foreign languages department, would hold an open-house demonstration of the new language laboratory.

Temporary Basis
Slee's Laboratories will be hired on a temporary on a temporary basis to conduct regular drinking water tests in all the joint schools.

The board accepted a bid of $642.55 from Earl Hilliard of Stroudsburg RD 3 to erect a backstop on the baseball field. The amount is $149.97 higher than the original bid due to specification changes.

The board approved purchases of $175 from John Bush and Son, Bethlehem, to erect a fence around the electrical panel on the auditorium stage, and a sum of $3,600 was approved for the 1963-64 budget for new tractor, snow blade and moving equipment.

The 24 by 24 foot wrestling mat purchased from Tom Taylor Inc., Scranton, which was found to be defective, will be replaced or repaired by that company who assumed responsibility for the mat in a letter to the board.

The board approved $102.15 to send eight debaters and a teacher to the state debate finals at Penn State, April 20.

Walter Melnikoff gave a resume of state bill 179 which will amend Act 561. His interpretation of the bill was that "very few school districts will remain as they are—none of the districts in Monroe County are included on the list of exemptions."

Identical
"There would be nine school districts and financial reimbursement would be identical with existing union districts," he said.

The board approved phase one of the Pennsylvania State Education Association's request to raise teachers' salaries. In relation to phase two, health and life insurance, the board agreed to a 50-50 sharing of premiums in health insurance.

They put a top limit of $3500 for its share of the annual premium which will cover 101 teachers and administrators.

The PSEA is to consider and submit plans in the order of their choice of the health coverage submitted.

PM Debaters District 7 Champions

POCONO Mountain Joint High School's debaters are the new District 7 champions.

The team will go to Penn State for the state competition April 20.

A. J. Caprioli, director of dramatics, is the coach for the debaters and the forensic team. The forensic team also took honors at the West Hazleton competitions which took place over the weekend.

John Ryan and Watson Bullock were the negative team for Pocono Mountain, and Bill Post and Tim Callahan took the affirmative side.

In the public speaking competitions, Zach Irwin took first place in boy's extemporaneous speaking, and Dan Challman took second in poetry reading with his rendition of the "Creation."

Others who took part in the forensics were Jerry Hanna, prose reading; Jeri Lynn Dann in girl's extemporaneous speaking; Miriam Bruce in informative speaking, and Margaret Barlieb in persuasive speaking.

Irwin won first place with an extemporaneous speech on "The Causes of Red China's Food Shortage." In this competition, the boys are allowed to draw three topics and choose one to speak on. They have one hour in which to prepare their speech.

Pocono Mountain debaters won four of four debates to take the district crown.

Mass Transit Plan Studied

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A mass transit program calling for the absorption of 32 independent transit lines was presented yesterday to the Allegheny County commissioners by the county Port Authority.

The program, with a $39,756,000 price tag, also would provide general improvements, including the purchase of 150 new buses costing $32,000 each.

The authority has worked out acquisition plans with all of the lines except the Pittsburgh Railways Co. which carries as many passengers as the other lines combined.

A recommendation that the system be put into effect without a referendum was included in the authority's proposal.

PV Board To Discuss Pay Schedule

BRODHEADSVILLE—Pleasant Valley Joint School Committee last night heard a request of the teachers for a salary schedule.

The teachers did not ask the committee to take any action on the proposal at the meeting but suggested they be granted permission to attend a meeting of the budget and finance committee where they could explain in detail the proposed schedule.

Upon explanation to the committee their report would be given to the joint committee for action.

The proposed schedule lists the starting salary of a non-experienced teacher at $4,500 with a maximum of $6,000. This is with a bachelor's degree.

The maximum for a teacher with a master's degree would be $7,500. The proposed schedule also lists a $11,000 salary for the supervising principal, $9,500 maximum for the high school principal and $8,000 a year for an elementary principal.

In other business, the committee hired Robert Andrews as a secondary special education teacher at a starting salary of $4,200 per year.

FBI Arrests Contractor On Local Project Kickback

THE Federal Bureau of Investigation yesterday announced the arrest of a Lehighite electrical contractor on charges of violating the federal "kickback racket" act during construction of federally financed housing in East Stroudsburg.

F. A. Frohbose, special agent in charge of the Philadelphia FBI, identified him as Larry S. Stout, 33, of 100 Court St., Lehighite.

A complaint filed before U.S. Commissioner Harry A. Kolb of Scranton was authorized by Thomas F. Kilroe, assistant U.S. Attorney for the Middle District of Pennsylvania.

School Districts Officials To Discuss Educational TV

COUNTY superintendents and administrators of independent school districts in Monroe, Wayne and Pike Counties will be among those attending a noon meeting next Thursday, March 21, at Genetti's, Hazleton, to discuss educational television.

A non-profit group, Northeastern Pennsylvania Educational Television Assn., was recently formed to represent a 10-county area, including the three local counties.

Dr. Charles H. Boehm, superintendent of the Dept. of Public Instruction, will be the speaker at next week's session.

Any person interested in the educational television program is welcome to attend the "dutch treat" luncheon.

Funds Sought

An application has been made for $200,000 in federal funds through the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare with the hope that matching funds will be provided by state and local governments.

Gov. William W. Scranton has requested a study to ascertain the cost of using commercial stations to air the educational programs.

Area Science Fair Plans Completed

FINAL plans for the Monroe County Science Fair were completed at a meeting of the fair committee last night in the offices of The Daily Record.

The fair will be held in the National Guard Armory in East Stroudsburg on Thursday and Friday, March 21 and 22.

It was announced the auxiliary of the Monroe County Medical Society will furnish hostesses for the fair.

A nominating committee consists of Justin C. Feltham, Pocono Mountain Joint High School; Lewis R. Hastie, East Stroudsburg Area Jointure; Thomas R. Knepp, Stroud Union, and Dr. W. Grady Moore, East Stroudsburg State College, was appointed by Ned Frick, president, to present a slate of officers which will be mailed to county science teachers.

Election will be held at the next meeting, the date of which will be announced.

School Districts Cited

MILFORD—Several school districts cited for overspending during fiscal year 1959 in the Delaware Valley Joint District, Pike County, were Delaware Township, Dingmans Township, Westfall Township, and Milford District.

The districts were cited by Auditor General Thomas Z. Minehart yesterday.

Failure to provide detailed information on solicitation of bids was the criticism of Matamoras Borough District, the other member of the jointure.

Surplus Milk Problems Discussed

HONESDALE—Two leading cooperatives presented different views on ways to reduce the surplus milk problem in the New York milkshed at educational meetings sponsored by the cooperatives.

Different views on ways to reduce the surplus milk problem for the New York milkshed were presented to Wayne County dairy farmers at an educational meeting sponsored by two leading cooperatives.

John C. York, executive secretary of Eastern Milk Producers, suggested a two-pronged attack on the surplus at the Lake Como meeting.

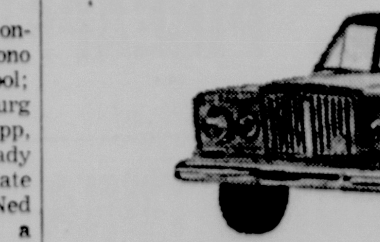

Under the set-up, the government would pay farmers for reducing production over one year. Then, a two-price plan would be put into effect, where surplus milk would receive a lower price than the milk produced under regulation.

IN THE past decade the United States has lost about one million acres of agricultural land each year to urbanization.

We have found from experience that a complete efficient service makes for reasonable prices without any sacrifice in quality or workmanship.

Federal Mediator Seeks To End Martz Bus Strike

WILKES-BARRE—Another attempt to end the four-month-old strike against Martz Trailways, which serves the Pocono Mountains area, will be made by a federal mediator.

E. Stanley Clevenger said yesterday he has been in touch with both the company and Division 1119, Motor Coach Employees Union. There were indications he will try to arrange a negotiating session within the next week.

Burglars Grab Coins In S-burg

BURGLARS took $10 in silver from a coin changer at Hintze Dry Cleaning and Fur Storage, 124 N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, early yesterday.

Stroudsburg police said the building was entered between 4 and 7:30 a.m. A cigarette machine was tampered with, but was not opened.

The theft was discovered by Clinton Bittenbender, Stroudsburg, RD 1, when he reported to work.

Propose Grant To APC

HARRISBURG (AP)—Three anthracite region legislators proposed a $3 million appropriations Tuesday to put out fires in coal refuse (culm) piles.

The money would be directed to the Air Pollution Commission, under the State Health Department.

Rep. Stanley A. Meholdick, Luzerne, principal sponsor of the bill (H574), said the commission's entire operating fund now is $50,000 and it has been inactive in the area of extinguishing culm fires.

The money could be used also in the bituminous area, if approved by the legislature and the governor, he added.

Striking workers Tuesday morning gave their union officials a vote of confidence by voting not to bypass the Federal Mediation Service and seek a meeting directly with the company.

Martz buses served several stations in the Pocono Mountains.

$25,000 Damages Sought

A HONESDALE woman is seeking $25,000 in damages in a suit claiming she was injured seriously while riding in a car driven by Shirley Hamor, Wyckoff, N. J.

Eileen Richards, 1231 Westside Ave., Honesdale brought the suit in Federal Court Tuesday.

Attorney Louis A. Fine is representing the plaintiff, who says she was hurt when the car in which she was riding left the highway near Honesdale on New Year's Day, 1962.

Beers Awarded Work Contract

HARRISBURG (AP)—The state Highways Department Wednesday awarded a contract for $168,454 to J. H. Beers, Inc., Bangor, for work on 70 miles of Routes 242 and 44 between Catawissa and Bloomsburg. The contract calls for bituminous pavement 22 feet wide and extension of a reinforced concrete arch.

Teen-Agers Turned Over To Court

THREE Stroudsburg teen-agers have been released in the custody of their parents for appearance before Juvenile Court on charges that they entered and removed articles from cars in various parking lots in the borough.

Stroudsburg police apprehended the three—aged 13, 14 and 15—after receiving a report that one of the trio had been seen taking groceries from a car in the A. and P. parking lot on Main St.

The initial arrest led to the apprehension of the other two, police said.

Rule Asked On Travel To Cuba

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Dr. Alan M. MacEwan, 54-year-old Lincoln University biology professor, yesterday asked a three-judge federal court to decide the constitutionality of a State Department ruling banning travel to Cuba.

MacEwan was joined in the suit by his wife, Mary. They charged in their request for an injunction that the ban violated their right to speak and travel freely.

The action named Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy and asked that the ban be lifted so that MacEwan should be able to visit Cuba without passport permission.

JAMES R. Reilly, a Democratic candidate for constable in Barrett Township, was one of the 24 petitions filed in the Monroe County Commissioners office, Stroudsburg, yesterday.

Others filing petitions were: Floyd Frable, a Democratic candidate for supervisor in Chestnut Hill Township; Delbert R. Heller, Democrat, and Lloyd Altemose, Republican, both filing as candidates for school directors in Chestnut Hill Township.

From Middle Smithfield Township, Martin Miller filed as a Democratic candidate for township auditor, Curtis Hickman, Democrat; John Stark, Republican, and Helen Marshall, Republican, all filed as candidates for school director.

Jacob L. Learn filed his petition as a Democratic candidate for supervisor in Pocono Township.

Ralph Snyder, a Democrat, filed for school director in Polk Township.

George L. Smith and Albert W. Gower, both Democrats, filed petitions for the office of supervisor in Ross Township.

G. Willard Stettler, a Democrat, and Donald K. Brink Jr., a Republican, yesterday filed for the office of school director in Smithfield Township.

Three more men filed for offices in the Borough of East Stroudsburg. They are, Elwood LaBar, a Democratic candidate for constable in the second ward; Charles Buzenli, a Republican candidate for councilman in the second ward, and Thomas F. Sexton, a Democratic candidate for councilman in the sixth ward.

Morris Smickley, a Democrat, filed for supervisor in Hamilton Township. He is the first to file from that township.

John P. Lim and Fred J. Titus, both Republicans, filed petitions for school director at large in the Stroud Union School District.

Henry Johns filed his petition as a Democratic candidate for constable in the first ward of Stroudsburg.

Daniel E. Knecht filed a petition as a Republican candidate in Tobyhanna Township.

The first petition filed this year from Tunkhannock Township is that of Harry Berger. He is a Democrat seeking the nomination as supervisor in the township.

U. S. Lends India $

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The United States is lending India $56 million to build a 300,000-kilowatt coal power station at Satpura, in the hills of central India. Under terms announced yesterday, about $25 million will be in dollars, repayable in 40 years at an annual interest of three-quarters of one per cent. The rest is in rupees from the sale of surplus American goods.

General Hospital Gets Joint Unit Accreditation

THE JOINT Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals has accredited the General Hospital of Monroe County in its report dated Dec. 31, 1962.

"There are approximately 7,000 hospitals in the United States," Kenneth B. Babcock, commission director, said, "but roughly only 4,000 are accredited."

He cited mental hospitals and profit-making hospitals as the two groups with the lowest accreditation percentage.

The accreditation percentage of non-profit general hospitals is 70 per cent, while for the other groups, 25 and 30 per cent respectively.

"Accreditation of a hospital means," Dr. Babcock said, "that it has voluntarily submitted to a survey of its facilities and its patient care. It is a badge of recognition which the hospital can display to its community to prove that it conforms to the highest standards of patient care."

The Joint Commission is an agency established by four organizations to check every aspect of a patient's care. The four organizations are the American College of Physicians, American College of Surgeons, American Hospital Association, and the American Medical Association.

Clark Hears CFA Help

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., announced yesterday he was informed of these advances approved by the Community Facilities Administration:

$4,350 to Franklin Township, Greene County, for preliminary planning for a sanitary sewage collection system; and $14,385 to Fell Township, Lackawanna County, for a similar project.

Keith C. Swales

ON DEC. 1, 1959, all nations with claims to Antarctic territory signed a treaty declaring the area south of 60 degrees south latitude an international preserve for scientific research.

Named To New Waring Post

KEITH C. Swales, director of the Waring Workshop and real estate advisor to Fred Waring Enterprises, has been named business manager of the Waring Golf Projects.

Swales joined the Waring organization after 10 years with real estate development businesses in Washington, D.C.

He was also a general manager of the Potomac Air Transport Inc., and helped that company to grow from two to 30 planes while he was there. He had received a contract to fly all seven of the U.S. Astronauts while in charge of the company.

Built Up Organization

He then came to the Waring outfit and became manager-director of the Waring Workshop in 1960, building up that part of the enterprizes to national prominence.

He was appointed real estate advisor to the Manwalamink Corp., the real estate activities of the Waring organization.

As a musical background, he spent 13 years with the U.S. Navy Band as first trombonist and made many recordings and tours.

Swales and his wife, Dolores, and five children reside on River Road, Shawnee.

New Policy On Jobless In Dispute

A NEW POLICY of the Department of Labor and Industry covering the prompt release of determinations for unemployment compensation of workers who are unemployed as a result of a labor dispute in the establishment in which they are working, but in which they are not involved, was announced yesterday by Secretary of Labor and Industry William P. Young.

Under the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law, workers directly involved in a labor dispute are not eligible for unemployment compensation benefits.

In the past, in some instances, it was the practice of the Bureau of Employment Security not to release any determinations until after the dispute had been settled.

Young said, "I have made this change in policy because I feel it would be unfair to withhold the payment of unemployment compensation benefits to workers who are eligible for benefits because other workers in an establishment are involved in a labor dispute."

"It will be my firm intention to pay unemployment compensation to eligible persons as soon as possible. Under the former policy, such payments may have been withheld for an unduly long period of time which caused personal hardship to these groups of workers whose eligibility was not in question."

He added that due care will be taken by the Department's Bureau of Employment Security to make sure that persons involved in a dispute or those who are in the group of workers that will be directly affected by the outcome will not be paid benefits during the dispute in accordance with the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law.

The secretary emphasized that this new policy does not affect either the workers or employers who are directly involved in a labor dispute, but it is intended to maintain the purchasing power of those persons not involved.

Yanks Make Friends For U. S.

By EDDY GILMORE
MOSCOW (AP)—In an old brick building in the heart of Moscow a group of enthusiastic American extroverts make friends for the United States.

They are American servicemen and embassy clerks working for the U.S. Embassy.

In their spare time and on a purely voluntary basis they make a home away from home for fellow Americans and scores of foreign diplomats and foreign embassy personnel.

Without the warm hospitality of the Americans Club, life in Moscow would be dull and lonely for a lot of foreigners, many of them from uncommitted countries.

Moscow Home
The Amerikansky Dom (American House) is the Moscow home of American servicemen and clerks attached to Ambassador Foy D. Kohler's staff. They live there and eat there. On the second floor they've made a meeting hall which is as American as baseball, a high school hop, or "Way Down Upon the Swanee River."

It was founded shortly after World War II and it flourished under the encouragement of the late Gen. Walter Bedell (Beetle) Smith, and Gen. John (Iron Mike) O'Daniel. Smith was then U.S. ambassador to the U.S.S.R. O'Daniel was his military attaché.

The big room is the club. It shows American movies, holds bingo games and stages dances. From a semicircular bar it dispenses what must be the biggest drinks in the world.

Music today is furnished by a juke box whamming out American jazz.

Once the club had a live orchestra called the Kremlin Krowns. Ambassador Kohler hopes to do it again, recalling that the old orchestra "as a morale builder was wonderful."

Need Pianist-Clerk
"What I'm hoping for," said Kohler, "is that Washington will shortly ship us a clerk who can play the piano. If we get a piano player we can start up again."

Two members of the old Kremlin Krowns are in Moscow—Minister-Counselor John M. McSwen-ey, a good knock-about bass player, and military attaché Col. Peter Leon Urban, a hot fiddler of the Joe Venuti school.

The original instruments—furnished by Gen. Lucius D. Clay when he was the American commander in Berlin—are growing dusty. The trombone is badly sprung. The back of the bass is broken and the only thing left of the drums are some warped rims.

"Give me the piano player," said the ambassador, "and I'll get the instruments."

Steel Output Dips In Week
NEW YORK (AP)—United States steel furnaces poured 8,222,080 net tons of ingots and steel for castings during February, compared with 8,390,914 in January, the American Iron and Steel Institute said Wednesday.

It listed the total production for the first two months of the year at 16,612,914 tons, compared with 20,051,064 tons in the same period of 1961.

The big room is the club.

South Wayne To Enter Three 'Acts'

NEWFOUNDLAND—Southern Wayne Joint School will send three "acts" to compete in the Wayne County Council of Student Council's talent show at Hawley on April 6. In addition, two other students will participate in the fifteen-minute interval allotted to the local school.

John David Strupcowsky, last year's county winner and this year's first place winner in the local show, will participate in the 1963 talent show at Wallenpaupack Area Joint School. The "Flora Dora" Girls, including Donald and David Dickinson, James Carlton and John Gearhart, will present their talents in a fashion revue. Donna Stevens, pianist, and Bob Grimm and Gloria Bartleson, vocalists, will complete the SWJS "talent."

Southern Wayne brought home three of the four prizes awarded last year, when, in addition to John David, the Jazz Band captured third place and Elizabeth "Happy" Dugan took fourth place.

Rusk Warns Of Soviet Forces

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk said yesterday the continued presence of Soviet forces in Cuba leaves open possibilities that a "highly dangerous" situation could still arise.

Rusk went into the Cuban issue in some detail in reply to questions while addressing the National Advertising Council.

He said a dangerous international situation would quickly arise if U.S. reconnaissance of Cuba was interfered with, if Soviet forces took action against Cubans or if a foray was mounted from Cuba against other hemisphere territory.

If the Soviets should try to send into Cuba the offensive weapons which they removed last fall, he said, that would produce a crisis which would make last October's crisis tiny by comparison.

N. Y. Offers Helmets
NEW YORK (AP)—Need 4,000 helmets from World War I?

New York City has them and wants to sell.

They are painted red and were used by the city's Civil Defense members until replaced by lighter plastic helmets.

Bids will be opened at 11:30 a.m., April 3.

Emergency Loans Made To Monroe County Farmers

"EMERGENCY loans have been made to Monroe County farmers whose crops were damaged by drought last year," Farmers Home Administration County Supervisor Frank Oreondo said yesterday.

"Funds have been advanced for the purchase of feed, seed, fertilizer, insecticides and farm supplies, the repair of equipment, payment of taxes, rent, insurance and other essential farm and home operating expenses.

"The main purpose of the program is to help farmers preserve and maintain foundation herds of cattle until they can produce feed for them. Many farmers in Pennsylvania have had to buy all hay and grain since November.

"Under the Department of Agriculture's Livestock Feed Program more than 5,000 farmers in Pennsylvania have filed applications to purchase surplus corn held in storage by the Commodity Credit Corporation. More than 1,100 carloads of corn have been shipped into Pennsylvania since Secretary Freeman de la Ried most of the state a disaster area last summer," he said.

To obtain corn, farmers should apply to the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office.

Should File Application
"Farmers that are unable to obtain credit from other sources should file their applications at once with the Farmers Home Administration located in Rm 208-210 Post Office Building, Allentown, Pennsylvania in order to obtain corn prior to the termination of the Feed Program.

"Congress made loans available to help eligible applicants, and we want to help every farmer that can qualify under the Emergency loan program," Mr. Oreondo said.

Satellite Has Power Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Relay communications satellite has been turned off because of power trouble, the space agency reported yesterday.

It was another in a series of power problems for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's experimental communications relay in space.

The current power trouble, similar to the first problems noted shortly after its Dec. 13 launch, developed early Saturday morning.

The satellite was turned off to allow batteries to build up power again from solar cells. A similar procedure shortly after the December launch enabled the satellite to resume operation.

Currently the home at 428 Market Street is being used as an administrative headquarters. It was noted that the Bangor Board would offer it to the joint school system to use as they are the presently building at 428 Market Street. When questioned as to the disposition of the present building most board members indicated they would favor the dismantling of the building to provide additional playground or parking space at the Fourth Street schools.

In other action of board with Clair Peiffy, president in charge authorized the purchase of tools for the three borough owned buses and further the board authorized Secretary Merle Mabius to request the Blue Valley Truck Sales, Inc., to stock supplies for the buses.

The board exonerated Isaiah Rosh, Tax Collector, for unpaid taxes for the current year that were returned to the County Tax Claim Bureau in the following amounts: real estate, $13,636.60 and per capita $2,836.00. Bills totaling $36,479.33 were approved for payment. The bank balance was listed as $37,950.28.

Stroud Union Students Honored

MEMBERS of the National Junior and Senior Honor Societies at Stroud Union High School were honored by the Stroud Union Teacher's Association Monday night in the high school auditorium.

Parents of the society members were the guests of the association. Mrs. Andrew Keiser, president of the Stroud Union P.T.A. presented membership pins as gifts from the organization. She was assisted by Mrs. Robert Hellman.

The annual affair was planned and executed by Raymond Serfass, advisor to the Senior Honor Society, Mrs. Frances Feltham, advisor to the junior society, and Ira Nagler.

The hostess committee chairman was Betty Martin, assisted by Mrs. Mildred Allen and Mrs. Lydia Strait.

Grade school teachers of the honored students were also present at the meeting.

Ira Nagler presented Earl F. Groner, superintendent of the district, who welcomed the guests.

Maxwell Cohen, local attorney, was the speaker. He spoke on "Important Values of Today," and noted that the modern person must change as the circumstances of the world change. He added that responsible students how scholastic ability.

New Bill Clamps Down On Surplus

HARRISBURG (AP)—Four House Republicans proposed a clampdown Tuesday on mismanagement of the federal surplus food program.

They introduced a bill (H582) making the county in which the improper action took place liable for any claims made by the federal government for repayment.

The proposal follows disclosure that the state has to pay the U. S. government some $142,000 to satisfy a claim based on misappropriation of some $400,000 worth of surplus food in Westmoreland County during the latter part of the 1950's.

The government agreed to settle its claim for $163,000, but the county paid only $21,000.

The new bill making the county liable for the full amount also would authorize the county to issue bonds to make payment.

Dr. Thompson To Be Honored

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—Dr. Donald C. Thompson of Albion, Pa., will be honored as the "School Administrator of the year" by the Pennsylvania School Study Council, it was announced Wednesday.

The award will be presented at final sessions of the 10th annual School Board Institute to be held on the campus of Pennsylvania State University here March 19-20.

Dr. Thompson is supervising principal of Northwestern School District at Albion, a post he has held for 20 years. The award consists of a plaque and a one-quarter time graduate assistantship in administration at Penn State's College of Education.

State Education Program Stymied

By FRED WALTERS
HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Scranton's education program appears to have moved out of the whirlpool of legislative indecision. The most significant action was the wholesale revision of his plan for reorganizing the policy-making level of state education.

This was done in the Senate, where amendments were adopted which would replace the existing Council of Education—and sub-

Passports Complicated By Applicants

By IRISH DONNELLEY
NEW YORK (AP)—Obtaining a passport is a simple, painless process. But sometimes applicants complicate it by their interpretations of the matter-of-fact instructions.

For example, in that portion of the application concerning visible distinguishing marks one man wrote: "Bald head, black eyes, smokes cigars and has large tattoo entitled 'Mother' on chest."

A woman responded: "You mean dressed or undressed?"

Nevertheless, processing of applications is going ahead at a record rate at the State Department New York passport agency under the direction of Joseph R. Callahan.

Callahan recalled the case of a man obtaining a passport for his 6-year-old daughter.

Asked to describe her characteristics, the man answered in one word "Naughty!"

Post Of Himself

Callahan recalled that the girl had sat on her father's hat, roamed the whole passport office and otherwise made a pest of herself while her father was filling out a questionnaire for her.

The simple question of "eyes"—meaning color, of course—threw another applicant. He answered "160 feet." Asked what he meant, he said that was how far he could see.

The questions of eyes and hair seems to perplex many applicants. Frequent answers concerning both are "yes."

Then there was the case of a newly naturalized woman who stated her son had acquired citizenship through the process of "fertilization."

One woman stated she understood that citizens of the United States may be either male or female upon reaching the age of 21, if of good moral character.

An elderly gentleman from abroad, finding difficulty in expressing himself in English, was under the impression that "one becomes a citizen of the United States, first by being born here, secondly by the 'melting pot.'"

Imbt Set To Preside At Parley

HERBERT R. Imbt, president, Associated Pennsylvania Contractors, will preside at the 41st convention of the association, in Atlantic City, N. J., March 21 through 23.

Imbt operates a business in Monroe County and one in State College. He was recently named president of the association.

Some of the speakers listed for the convention are Wilbur Webb, Joseph J. Lawler and Eugene Robbins.

Congress Asked For Defense Cash

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department asked Congress Wednesday to authorize military construction for the year beginning July 1 to cost $1,862,655,000.

Funds for the individual projects, if authorized, would be asked in a later appropriation bill.

Pennsylvania projects are: Navy—Johnsville Air Development Center, $780,000, research, development and test facilities, Mechanicsburg Fleet Material Support Office, $352,000, administrative facilities, Philadelphia Marine Corp supply activity, $2,800,000, administrative facilities, Philadelphia Naval Shipyard, $90,000, operational facilities.

Air Force—Olmsted AFB, Middletown, $1,706,000, operational, maintenance and administrative facilities.

Defense Supply Agency—Defense clothing and textile supply center, Philadelphia, $809,000, operational and research, development and test facilities, and utilities.

Farmers Plagued By Cold, Wet

By OVID A. MARTIN
WASHINGTON (AP)—Farmers in the eastern half of the country continue to be plagued by cold, wet weather that limits preparation of land for seeding to early spring crops.

The U. S. Weather Bureau's Crops Bulletin said Friday field work is showing much better progress in the southern half of the Great Plains and in most areas west of the Rocky Mountains.

The Agriculture Department offered yesterday to extend for another year price support loans to growers on about 141 million bushels of farm-stored grain.

Covered by this offer are 1962 crop wheat, barley, oats and sorghum grains, 1959 crop wheat, 1960 crop wheat and sorghum grains, and 1951 crop barley, oats and sorghum grain. Loans will not be extended on 1959 crop barley, 1960 crop barley and oats and 1961 crop soybeans still stored on farms.

The government has put out 18 percent more money in supporting prices of crops and other farm products produced in 1962 than in 1961.

The total used in price support operations on 1962 production to Feb. 1, was $3,127,544,000 compared with $2,643,939,000 for 1961 production to the like date a year ago.

Much of the increase was in supports for cotton and dairy products.

Gradually, the thinking evolved to an over-all council, or board, divided for research and planning purposes into separate subcommittees, or councils, in the areas of higher and basic education.

As far as the public was concerned, however, the issues had all the tingling excitement of a race between two lary turtles.

Scranton and his advisors picked it up, and made creation of a board with councils the keystone of a new administration's education program.

The Scranton name, with its King Mida ability to lift issues out of the prosaic, suddenly made this fusty feud a new issue.

Recruiter To Visit Stroudsburg

PETTY Officer First Class Roy Henderson, area Coast Guard recruiter, will be in the Stroudsburg Post Office Friday from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. to interview interested applicants for that branch of the service.

Enlistees will be allowed to select the date of enlistment and departure for basic training.

All recruits will undergo a 12-week training course at Cape May, N. J., and upon completion they will have the opportunity to qualify for specialized training.

For more information on tactics P.O. Henderson Friday in the post office.

Forecast Coal Need In Europe

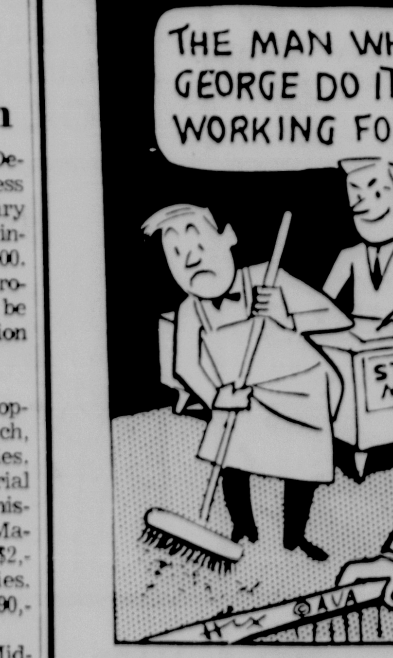

LUXEMBOURG CITY (AP)—European Coal and Steel Community experts forecast the pool will need 65.7 million tons of coal in the second quarter, against 65.2 in the same period last year.

Estimated exports to non-member countries will amount to one million tons, against 1.3 million in last year's second quarter.

Production was put at 562 million tons, about the same as last year, and imports of 7.2 million tons, against 5.4 in the second quarter of last year.

Woman Dies In Pittsburgh Fire

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A woman dashed back into her burning house to get some belongings early yesterday. She disappeared in thick smoke and perished.

Mrs. Twila Garlick, 36, was found dead of smoke inhalation in her three-story frame home in suburban Aspinwall.

Firemen said Mrs. Garlick and six others got out of the house safely. Then she and her husband, John, 36, went back inside.

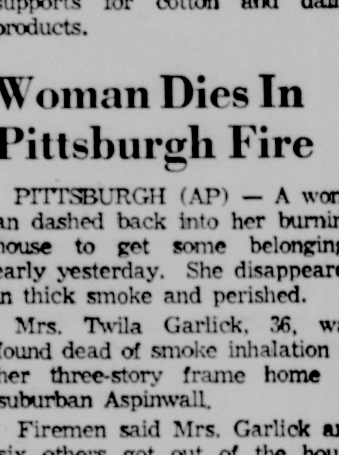

Firemen got Garlick out. But dense smoke prevented them from reaching Mrs. Garlick.

Garlick was taken to a hospital suffering from smoke inhalation.

The couple's two children and a woman and her two children escaped injury.

Firemen said the blaze apparently was touched off by a clothes dryer, but the exact cause was not learned.

Eaton Sees Jazz Festival 'Tremendous Area Boon'

By Jeff Cox
Daily Record Reporter

ALL OF A sudden, the interest in jazz in the Poconos has increased like a balloon filled from an air hose.

The air in this case is the possibility of bringing a jazz festival to the region on a permanent basis. Not only jazz, but contemporary music would be represented at the affair.

America has no outlet for contemporary composers which would be equalled by festival such as is planned for Stroudsburg.

This first festival, however, would seem to be planned around name jazz bands and groups, but the long-run picture calls for the introduction of contemporary music into the program.

Speaking on this subject last night, John Eaton, one-time area resident and a musician who is currently pushing at the boundaries of progressive developments in the music field, said that if the contemporary music element is interposed in the program, the festival could become the greatest cultural development in America in this century.

"Tremendous Boon"

"It could be a tremendous boon to the area," Eaton said. "I'm very, very excited as a former resident. The festival could really put the area on the map culturally."

"The prospects are breathtaking," he continued, "if the festival moves into a mixture between jazz and contemporary music. It would not only contribute to the culture of America, but would make a cultural contribution to the world."

"I'd do anything in my power to bring it to pass," Eaton added. He said that in America there is no outlet for composers of contemporary music — they have to go to Europe for the opportunity to present their music to large groups.

He noted that a festival of the kind he described could alter the cultural history of the world, could make America the center of this art form.

A jazz festival, per se, would be economically successful, but would not be as significant as a mixed presentation. Eaton said this in no way was meant to deprecate jazz festivals, but he felt the presentation of contemporary music in this country is essential to the progress of music with a capital M.

John Excited

In any case, Eaton is excited about the prospects of such a program here. The economic aspect is but one facet of the new face this area would receive by becoming the home of a large cultural event.

A town, any town which would play host to such an affair, must have civic leaders who are capable of turning this program into a yearly center for American composers. Eaton felt that there is a great group of talented contemporary composers in this country with no vehicle through which to educate the public to their efforts.

Maxwell Cohen, attorney for the promoters of the festival, said at a meeting on Monday that the promoters plan to turn the festival along these lines. Eaton also felt that a carbon copy of the Newport festival would not be enough to give the current contemporary talent its vehicle.

Same Thought Lines

Cohen mentioned the possibility of future classes and seminars being held here, of allowing this area to become the showcase for progressive developments in music, the meeting ground for the best talents in contemporary composition.

When asked whether he felt jazz and contemporary music are moving toward a focal point, Eaton said that he thought not.

This was not a denigration of jazz, or of the other branch of music, but a statement of the different aims of the two musics.

Jazz is marked by improvisation, contemporary music by the polished refinement and perfection of its form.

He foresees three possible avenues for jazz to take in the future: one, it could develop in the direction of a greatly expanded tradition in which improvisation would become more and more subtle and significant, like the classical music of southern India.

Second, it could disappear and move completely into contemporary music, such as was the case with gypsy music of southeastern Europe at the turn of the century. It was utilized by composers, and what was left was a repitious set of cliches that parodied the strong original form.

Third, a stratification of jazz could set in, where improvisation could give way to building upon cliches, building upon repeated forms, and playing only the obvious devices assumed to be jazz.

Prefers First

Eaton said he preferred the first development.

Such movements inside jazz or contemporary music are advances in the highest form of music we have today — thus are cultural advances of the first magnitude.

Stroudsburg might have a festival this year, later Monroe County could become the home and showcase for developments of this kind. Almost all of the responsibility this year depends on the festival promoters.

In future years, if the whole project does come off, part of the responsibility is shouldered on the leaders of the area.

PV Cast Member Learns To Whistle In 10 Minutes

BRODHEADSVILLE — Kathy Livengood, a member of the Junior Class play cast, "The Bachelor and the Bobbysoxer," has been given a lesson in whistling by Fred Lowery.

Lowery, a professional whistler and well known in the entertainment world, appeared recently in Pleasant Valley Joint High School for an assembly program. He learned of Miss Livengood's play problem and contacted her after the program.

Miss Livengood is required to deliver a "whistle" in the play but her sound was not properly executed. Following a ten-minute practice session with Lowery she is now ready to deliver the proper sound in the play.

The play will be presented at 8 p.m. on April 5 and 6 in the high school auditorium.

Measles continues to rank as the most prevalent communicable disease affecting this country, according to the Communicable Disease Center of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The center estimates there are in excess of four million cases of measles annually.

Anthracite Pays $200,000-Plus

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — Anthracite Raceway, Inc., has paid in excess of $200,000 to Glen Alden Coal Co. for more than 350 acres along Route 315 in Plains Township to be used as a harness track.

The plant will be known as Pocono Downs. Target date for completion is the spring of 1964, with a 50-day meet to be held that summer.

Bids were opened yesterday in Hazleton for construction of the multimillion dollar plant. Work is scheduled to begin this month on leveling the land and landscaping. The track will be five miles northeast of Wilkes-Barre.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

If the day was more than a little soggy around the edges, the news seemed to be coming in sharp and clear. Any story in which a personality, a mood, or a setting comes into sudden focus is a good story to me, regardless of size or importance in the whole scheme of things.

Maybe it's a quirk, like Red Cross's daughter and her husband having lunch in Antigua at 90 in the shade and an unexpected dinner in Toronto at 6.

Maybe it's a glimpse into a party itself, like knowing that one of Dr. Gregory's birthday cakes was baked in a pan that's older than he is and that they waited up past midnight so they could also celebrate his niece's birthday which came the next day.

Maybe it's not in the story at all but an aside, like how much the East Stroudsburg Band Mothers miss Stella Plattenburg—who does whatever she does with such vigor.

And maybe it's a story I'm not supposed to use at all—like the local woman, a prominent Democrat, who was Gov. Scranton's dinner partner the other night and confessed she's enjoyed him more than she could have believed.

Or maybe it's a coincidence, like Pete Walsh hopefully signing up Little Leaguers just as if it were really going to ever be warm enough for baseball, coupled with my Girl Scout grass plot which I talked Mac into taking a picture of just in case you'd forgotten what grass looks like.

Whatever it is, some days news has it and some doesn't.

Readers Raise Questions About Reaching Their Goals

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

Question: I'm stuck in an office where my immediate supervisor is not the type to notice peoples' ambition and help push them through the ranks. In fact, it's obvious to everyone that he doesn't want to disturb the status quo of his department by recommending promotions that would change things in his section.

This is all right for him. But it isn't for me, since I'm anxious to get ahead to some of the good jobs elsewhere in our large company.

Office Protocol

Office protocol, however, makes it impossible for me to go over my immediate supervisor's head to get to the top people who might give my ambition more chance. Can you tell me what to do? Miss H. W.

Answer: You don't indicate in your letter whether or not you've actually talked to your supervisor, told him of your ambition, asked his advice in the matter and requested permission to seek further advice from a person at the top who could also help you.

Consequently, we're in the dark about whether you took this important first step before you decided it was impossible to get to the top people.

Two Causes

Sometimes the impressions of employees that they can't ever get to top level people are actually their own attitudes getting in the way. Other times, admittedly, it's the personality and attitude of immediate superiors who resent it.

Whatever it is, though, the right way to start a campaign to talk to top people is to talk to your supervisor first. If that proves to be a blind alley, you'll have to take matters into your hands.

One way to do this, as we emphasize again and again, is to come up with a good idea for your company. When the idea is as good as you can make it, submit it to the right top person, along with a request to talk to him.

Often this approach will work, too, because top people don't overlook employees who have ideas.

Question: When I set a goal to accomplish in my job and then can't meet it, a terrible depression sets in and I abandon it altogether. Since you believe in goals, do you believe there's a way to counteract this reaction? K. R.

Answer: Yes! Keep excited

Miss Dorothy Borden Is Bride Of Thomas Nelson

Saylorsburg—Miss Dorothy Borden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Borden, of Saylorsburg, became the bride of Thomas Nelson on Feb. 9 at 10 a. m. at St. Peter's Evangelical United Brethren Church, Saylorsburg.

Mr. Nelson is the son of Albert Nelson and the late Clara Nelson, of Nazareth, RD 3.

Rev. Clair Matz performed the ceremony with Mrs. Lucy Warner as organist.

Given in marriage by her uncle John Hosier, the bride wore a gown of white tulle with a street length with white velvet applique flowers. Her fingertip veil fell from a floral pill-box crown and she carried a bouquet of white daisies.

Miss Beatrice Rosand of Stroudsburg as maid of honor wore a blue satin dress with a blue hat with a veil and matching shoes. Her bouquet was of red and white carnations.

Larry Wescott, of Stroudsburg, was best man.

A reception was held at the Lake House in Saylorsburg.

The bride, a graduate of Stroud Union High School, is employed by Fleischman's Sportswear. Her husband also attended Stroud Union High School and is employed by Pennsylvania Rebar.

They are making their home in an apartment in Saylorsburg.

There Went Dr. Gregory's 72nd--Again

Dr. John Gregory, North Eighth St., Stroudsburg, who has celebrated his 72nd birthday for an undisclosed number of years, has done it again.

He was the guest of honor at a birthday dinner party featuring turkey and all the trimmings. There were three birthday cakes, one a five-tier cake; the second, an old-fashioned sponge cake made in a 100-year-old earthenware dish by his sister, Mrs. F. W. Delbert, and the third a cake baked by his daughter, Barbara Gilpin, who shared birthday honors.

The group waited until midnight so they could also usher in the birthday of another guest, Mrs. Jonathan Delbert.

Guests included Mrs. F. W. Delbert, Mrs. Emma Meitzler, Mrs. Lizzie Shupp, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Altmore, Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Delbert, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gilpin and children, Mary Jane and Donald, Mrs. Ruth Gearhart, and Dr. and Mrs. Gregory.

Dr. Gregory also received many cards from other friends and relatives.

ES Neighborhood Scouts In International Daisy Chain

Girl Scouts of the East Stroudsburg Neighborhood celebrated the 51st year of Girl Scouting with an International Daisy Chain ceremony at the J. M. Hill School in East Stroudsburg.

Each troop in presenting its link of the Daisy Chain also represented a different country in which Girl Scouts live and their Friendship gift to International Scouting before joining the other troops to form a circle Daisy Chain.

A display of scrapbooks and dolls in international costumes was arranged by Troop 302 with Mrs. Norman Mosher as leader.

The ceremony opened with group singing led by Miss Gail Smith. The flag ceremony was performed by a color guard from Troop 305: Annette Peters, Mary Rodgers, Mary Wydra, Emily Gallazzo and Kathy Kutchner.

Guests included Miss Peggy Jean Davis, Miss Lois Wilding, Miss Zule Znaniecki, Miss Alide Taylor, all of Stroudsburg; Mrs. Lillian Acker, troop consultant for Stroudsburg; Mrs. Gilbert Scharf, district 5 chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Grant, nature consultants and Mrs. Alfred Sumberg, neighborhood chairman.

Troop 313 served as usher under the leadership of Mrs. Rachel Sarley. Refreshments were served by Troop 314 with Mrs. Clifford Kintner as leader, Mrs. Donald Berger and Mrs. Laura Bauscher, co-leaders.

Peter Maaser, chosen outstanding musician of the recent Band Festival, was congratulated by the East Stroudsburg Band Mothers.

Band Mothers Plan Spring Activities

With their role as hosts to the District Band Festival behind them the East Stroudsburg Band Mothers turned their attention to new projects at their meeting on Monday night.

A Band Party will be held March 29 with Mrs. Polly Hope as chairman and Tillie Zacharias as co-chairman. A rummage sale has been scheduled for April 18 and 19 next to the Grand Theater in East Stroudsburg with Mrs. Elizabeth Staples chairman and Mrs. Mary Boushell, co-chairman. The sale of tea and brooms will continue.

A nominating committee was named to include Mrs. Charlotte Seese, chairman, Mrs. Gertrude Blitz and Mrs. Peg Fatzinger. The members voted to purchase a contra-bass clarinet for the band.

Mrs. Allen Sterner, president, thanked the committees who worked for the success of the Band Festival. Congratulations were expressed to Pete Maaser for winning the Maurice Taylor award as the outstanding musician chosen by the guest conductor. He is the second student from East Stroudsburg to receive the award which went to Robert Reid in 1960.

Proceeding the business meeting an entertainment was presented by the clarinet quartet, pupils of Marilyn Miller: Bonnie Corbin, Cindy Gallagher, Pat Flory and Susan Miller. There was also a clarinet solo by Elaine Kaufman with Ora Mikels as accompanist.

Our fashion buyers are certainly going buggy this year—LADYBUGGY! Here it isn't even Spring (but I'm counting the days, aren't you?) and we have LADYBUGS all over the place . . . Ladybugs in the Better Dress department, and more LADYBUGS in the Blouse department, and all our customers who appreciate the new, the lovely, the adorable in fashion are absolutely bug-eyed with approval.

Ladybugs are, of course, the nicest of all bugs. As a child, I feared them and thought they were some terrible thing that would never be found in any self-respecting household. Mother soon set me straight. "One never kills a Ladybug," she said. To this day, I'm not sure why—whether she had a legitimate reason for favoring these bugs or womanlike, was just sticking up for her sex. Actually, Ladybugs fascinate me . . . but are there MEN Ladybugs? I'm not sure how I got into this, but it is something to think about, isn't it?

I never liked the nursery rhyme about Ladybugs that cautions them to "fly away home—your house is on fire, your children will burn." Those lines malign her, I think . . . making her sound like a flibbertigibbet who spends all her time wandering aimlessly, neglecting her family. I feel the nursery rhyme needs re-writing. It should read:

Ladybug, Ladybug, don't hurry home . . .
Dressed in these fashions, it's pleasant to roam.

LADYBUG FASHIONS, as shown on our Wyckoff racks, are distinguished for easy, light-hearted styling, for the color and imagination of their prints, and for their excellent quality. In our Fashion department Mardee Albert stocks Ladybug Dresses—shifts, many of them in brilliant, sun-drenched, rainbow-inspired colors; and shirtmakers in prints—dainty apple blossoms, gay cherries, and such. Dresses, junior sizes, 7 to 15, are priced from thirteen to eighteen dollars. LADYBUG BLOUSES, in India Madras, fine batiste, oxford cloth and liberty prints are priced from 5.95 to 8.98, in Small, Medium, and Large sizes.

The India Madras is guaranteed to bleed, so do be sure to wash the bloody stuff separately, or you'll go buggy another way. It's the bleeding that adds to the fabric's beauty, just as tiny scratches induced by daily wear add a special patina to fine silver.

It this column "bugs" you and you won't be able to light in any one place until you know what in heaven's name I'm talking about, why don't you fly in today and see for yourself? Bring the kiddies too . . . they'll just love the tiny ladybug pin that is a cute accessory of every Ladybug fashion.

Realty Syndicate

By William A. Doyle
Q. What is a real estate syndicate? What is the degree of risk in investing in such a venture? Why is only a small portion of the return on such an investment taxable as ordinary income for Federal income tax purposes?

A. Basically, a real estate syndicate is a method through which many different people invest in income-producing property—such as an office building, a hotel, a motel, an apartment building, etc.

A typical syndicate arrangement would work as follows:

A small group of people organize a syndicate. These organizers become the general partners. Through the syndicate they sell "limited partnerships" or "participations" to the general public.

With the money raised that way

(and often with additional borrowed money) the syndicate buys or builds the income-producing property.

If all goes well, the money coming in from rents is passed on to the people who have invested in the syndicate—after deductions of expenses of running the syndicate and the organizers' share.

Many syndicates have paid and do pay quite high returns—10, 12 per cent or more. But a very high return can be a red flag of warning.

As in any type of investment, sky-high returns can mean high risk—risk that such return may not be maintained and that the outfit may wind up in financial difficulty.

Most real estate syndicates use "accelerated amortization and depreciation accounting procedures." That may seem like so much goobledy-gook but it's not really too complicated.

For instance, a syndicate will "write off" for tax purposes a percentage of the value of the property and a percentage of any mortgage it is paying on the property.

Those accounting items are deducted from the syndicate's total income—for tax purposes. That reduces the syndicate's taxable income.

But those deductions are only bookkeeping deductions. The syndicate has the cash involved. That money is then passed on to the people who invested in the syndicate, as a "return of capital."

That's the reason that part of the return you receive from an investment in a real estate syndicate is not taxable as ordinary income.

Many syndicates have been very successful. Some have been flops. A number have been in serious financial troubles lately.

Anyone who is considering investing in a real estate syndicate should have all the details of each syndicate (they do vary a great deal) explained by a good accountant.

And, above all, know the people with whom you are dealing. There have been some real sharpies in that business.

Q. From time to time I have read about certain mutual funds with good records. Recently I read a magazine article about the "10 top funds" with the best performance over the past year or so. My broker cannot (or will not) give me the address of one of those mutual funds. Where can I get this information?

A. Ask your broker to let you see his copy of either "Investment Companies," published by Arthur Wiesenberger & Co., or "Johns & Co.," published by Hugh Johnson & Co. Those two books list all mutual funds in which you could possibly be interested. You'll also find those books in many public libraries.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only represented letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

SPRING IS JUST AROUND THE CORNER—With the melting of winter's snows, causing damage to area streets water collects on all the low spots of the highways. Spring must be just around the corner.

Witnesses Plan For Convention

ORGANIZATIONAL arrangements were made yesterday at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, Allentown, for the forthcoming Jehovah's Witnesses' convention of Pennsylvania Circuit No. 2, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 12 to 14.

Stephen F. Bortlik, presiding minister of the local congregation announced that the religious convention has been planned for the Agricultural Auditorium at the Allentown Fairgrounds.

Presiding over the meeting was the newly appointed circuit director Richard Palm of Brooklyn, N. Y. During the evening Mr. Palm named ministers who will supervise the more than 15 departments comprising the assembly's organizational structure. Those named locally are: Mr. Bortlik, volunteer service department; Fred Severud, Gap View Drive, music department; Hayden S. Howell, Saylorsburg, assistant assembly director.

"These departments are organized to distribute the many responsibilities that arise when a large group meets in assembly. All service is on a volunteer basis," Mr. Bortlik said.

Commenting further relative to the anticipated large gathering he said, "Meetings like these, where whole families gather to worship and to learn the will of God and his purpose for mankind in these serious times, are of great value. Therefore the purpose of the program is to aid Christians to carry out their ministerial obligation both as students and as teachers of the Bible."

Joseph Salk, of Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of Brooklyn.

In announcing the appointment, Charles A. Easton Jr., president of the State Chamber, said that Parry has long been a member of the Water Supply Committee and also of the Chamber's Industrial Development Committee.

In addition Parry is both a member of the executive committee and publicity chairman of the Water Resources Association of the Delaware River Basin and he is also a member of the New Jersey State Water Resources Advisory Committee. He is also an aide for New Jersey to the Keystone Shortway.

Gov. Appoints Mrs. Martindale

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Scranton appointed Katherine B. Martindale, a Harrisburg attorney, yesterday to the $13,500-a-year job as chairman of the state Board of Arbitration of Claims.

He immediately sent the appointment to the Senate for confirmation.

Mrs. Martindale was named to succeed Clair Groover, a Lewisburg lawyer, whose term expired.

The appointee, a native of New Castle, has been practicing general law in Dauphin County since 1931.

Numbers Racket In New Castle

NEW CASTLE, Pa. (AP)—The Lawrence County district attorney wants the state to help out numbers writing from New Castle.

Dist. Atty. Kenneth E. Fox Jr. said Tuesday he had written Atty. Gen. Walter Alessandrini, asking that state police be allowed to make arrests in the city.

Fox said Alessandrini's office informed him that a meeting would be set to discuss the situation as soon as the current reorganization of the state government is finished.

Mantle Back, But Yankees Lose Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mickey Mantle returned to the New York Yankees line-up Wednesday, but the world champions nevertheless lost their fourth of five starts in baseball's opening exhibition season. The Detroit Tigers beat them 4-2, taking a quick lead on Rocky Colavito's three-run homer in the first inning.

Mantle, star center fielder, had been out since he suffered a pulled groin muscle on Sunday. He walked twice and grounded out in three appearances at the plate.

Stan Williams, the big right-hander the Yankees obtained from the Dodgers, yielded Colavito's drive over the fence at Fort Lauderdale after Jake Wood had singled and Bill Bruton had walked. The Yankees scored twice in their half of the first on Elston Howard's single with the bases loaded, but thereafter five Detroit double plays thwarted them.

In other games Wednesday San Francisco beat the Chicago Cubs 3-2, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Milwaukee 3-1, Pittsburgh downed St. Louis 5-2, the Chicago White Sox triumphed Philadelphia 10-7, the New York Mets edged Cincinnati 3-2, Kansas City nipped Washington 5-4, Houston nipped Cleveland 6-5 and Boston took the Los Angeles Angels 5-1.

Schofield Set As A Regular

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Dick Schofield, a bonus baby of the class of 1953, finally is getting a chance to be a regular with a big league club after 10 years of part time work.

Ever since the day the St. Louis Cardinals paid Schofield $40,000 to sign a contract, somebody else always has been in front of him. In 10 years he has played only 494 games.

"First it was Solly Hemus," recalled Schofield. "Then it was Alex Grammas. And finally, just when I thought I was ready, the Cardinals made a deal for Alvin Dark. When I went to Pittsburgh there was Dick Groat playing every day."

Schofield's chance came when the Pirates traded Groat to St. Louis last fall in a series of deals that opened up three infield jobs. Schofield is determined he won't let anyone get in front of him this time.

"When I first signed I was pretty young (only 18) and I didn't figure to play much. I stayed with the Cardinals all the way in 1953 and 1954 under the old bonus rule. I was farmed out to Omaha in 1955 and again in 1956. I thought I was ready to move up to the big club when they made the deal with the Giants for Dark."

"In 1958 they moved Dark to third base and I got a shot at shortstop for a month. I thought I was ready to take over when all of a sudden I didn't play any more. I still don't know why. In June they traded me to Pittsburgh.

"Good Job!"

"With the Pirates I did a good job at second base when Bill Mazeroski was out but in 1959 I was a utility man again.

"The most satisfying stretch of my career, so far, was in 1960 when Groat was hurt and I played shortstop while we were driving for the pennant. I batted over .400 during that stretch but Groat came back for the World Series and I pinch hit twice and played only five innings.

"The next year I was very much disappointed that I wasn't playing. I was confused. When I started out good at third base last year, I thought I was set. Zep, I was out of the line-up again. I talked to Joe Brown (Pirate general manager) and he convinced me everything would be all right."

Early Wynn Is Hammered In 1st Frame

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Early Wynn was hammered for two triples, a double, and a single and Wynn's home run in the first inning Wednesday, but the Chicago White Sox rallied for eight runs in an explosive third inning to beat the Philadelphia Phillies 10-7.

The 43-year-old Wynn, making his first start in search of a 1963 contract, worked only one inning. Gary Peters, who held the Phils to one run and only two singles in the next four innings, was the winner.

Chicago catcher J. C. Martin hit a two-run homer off Art Mahaffey, who was shelled out in the third inning and also slammed a double in the same inning off Billy Smith, who absorbed the loss. Ron Hansen also harvested two hits in the same inning and smashed a two-run homer in the fifth.

The Phillies' John Callison homered off Marley Johnston, third Chicago pitcher, in the seventh. Callison also had one of the Phillies first inning triples and Don Hoak clouted the other.

Bloomsburg Coach Goes To Rutgers

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP) — Bill Foster, varsity basketball coach at Bloomsburg (Pa.) State College for three years, was named head coach at Rutgers University Wednesday.

Foster, 33, signed a three-year contract. He succeeds Don White, who is retiring. White was named interim coach for this season after Toni Kuolt resigned.

Foster's first two teams at Bloomsburg had 12-4 and 16-3 records. This year's team was 17-4 and played in the NCAA College Division Eastern Regional Playoffs, beating Mount St. Mary's and losing to Philadelphia Textile.

Albert W. Twitchell, Rutgers athletic director, said Foster was highly recommended by some of the leading coaches in the East, including Harry Litwack of Temple.

Foster is 6-foot-3 and 190 pounds. He graduated from Elizabethtown (Pa.) College in 1954, where he played basketball and soccer and was named the school's outstanding athlete of his senior year.

As a four-year letterman in basketball he scored more than 1,100 points. Twitchell said Rutgers was impressed with the fact that Foster has been associated with Litwack in running the Pocono Mountain Basketball Camp for Boys at Shawnee-on- Delaware for the last seven years. Foster has been co-director of the Jim Pollard Basketball Coaches Clinic at Valley Forge, Pa.

SPORT CAR DRIVERS—Even though the weather was not cooperative, Dave Haney, a student at East Stroudsburg State College, and George Johnson, a director of the Pocono Mountain Sport Car Association, prepare for the March 31 sport car rally which is being co-sponsored by the PMSCA and the Mens' Recreation Association of ESSC. ## Sports Car Rally Slated In Poconos On March 31

"CANAL CAPERS", a photo-map sports car rally, will be held in the Pocono Mountains March 31.

The rally is being co-sponsored by the Pocono Mountain Sports Car Association and the Mens' Recreation Association of East Stroudsburg State College.

According to George B. Johnson of the Pocono Sports Car Association, the net profits of the rally will be turned over to William E. Schieble Jr. of the M.R.A. council at ESSC. In turn the money will then be used to develop the ESSC student-owned Stony Acres Farm.

250-Mile Route

The rally will begin at 10 a.m. from the parking lot on the College campus. Upon leaving the campus, the photo-map course will cover 250 miles along the route of a now defunct but historically important canal.

Johnson stated that the rally will use photographs of significant points as clues, and the route sheet will also give a running historical commentary.

Only the first 30 entries received by the Sports Car Club will be accepted and prizes will be awarded for the first 5 winners.

Students Entered

Students who have entered the rally early are Dave Haney and Ray Rogers of Stroudsburg.

A buffet supper will follow the conclusion of the rally.

Further information about the rally or the Pocono Mountain Sports Car Association can be secured by contacting George B. Johnson, 196 Ananook St., East Stroudsburg.

Kuharich Resigns From Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Joe Kuharich stepped down as head football coach at the University of Notre Dame Wednesday after four years without a winning season.

The university said the 46-year-old former Washington Redskins and Chicago Cardinals coach would take an administrative post in the National Football League.

The freshman coach, Hugh Devore, was named interim coach for the 1963 season.

The Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of Notre Dame, called Kuharich an able coach and said the Irish were sorry to lose him.

"We know it was a difficult decision for Mr. Kuharich to retire from the active coaching ranks," Father Joyce said. Kuharich's specific post in the NFL was not announced. He was professional coach of the year in 1955 while guiding the Redskins.

The South Bend native and Notre Dame alumnus left the Redskins to become Irish football boss in 1958. His teams broke even with 5-5 records in 1959, 1961 and last year, but his 2-8 slate in 1960 was Notre Dame's worst mark in 68 years.

Devore, 52, was interim coach for Notre Dame in 1961 while Frank Leahy was in service and guided the Irish to a 7-2-1 record.

He later served as head coach at St. Bonaventure and on the staff of the professional Green Bay Packers. Devore returned as freshman coach at Notre Dame the season before Kuharich was hired.

Father Joyce said the present coaching staff would be retained.

Crowd Cries 'Fake' Clay Winner By Decision

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Rocked in the first round, cocky Cassius Clay rallied to gain a narrow, unpopular 10-round decision over Doug Jones of New York at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

The self-proclaimed "greatest heavyweight of them all" looked far from that as he failed to even score a knockdown over his smaller rival.

The capacity crowd of 18,732 let loose with a storm of boos and cries of "fake" seconds after the unanimous verdict was announced.

Unanimous Verdict

The three officials all had Clay the winner by the following scores:

Judge Frank Forbes and Judge Artie Aidala 5-4-1 each in rounds; and Referee Joe Loscalzo 8-1-1. The AP card had Jones in front, 5-4-1.

Only a sweep of the last two rounds carried the undefeated Clay from the brink of disaster. He won those two rounds from all of the officials and that won it.

Never once did the 202½ pound Clay, a 3-1 favorite, come close to flooring his 188-pound rival. The 21-year-old Louisville contender had predicted "Jones will fall in four."

Loscalzo's verdict was the last to be announced and the crowd greeted that with boos and then started throwing things.

18th Straight

It was the 18th straight victory for Clay, who turned pro shortly after winning the Olympic light heavyweight title in 1960. But his streak of knockout victories was ended at nine.

Jones, a 26-year-old New Yorker and almost a forgotten man in his hometown, suffered his fourth defeat. He has won 21.

But the capacity crowd, roaring through the close fight, gave Doug an ovation at the finish.

Quick Notice

The spindly-legged New Yorker gave Clay quick notice that he had no intention of falling quickly. Early in the first round, he caught Cassius with a hard right to the jaw that shook the cocky one all over. Clay had just leaned his head back and Jones came through with the right.

Jones also rocked Clay in the fourth and seventh rounds, and at times made the tall, handsome youngster look like a novice. Cassius was often short with his piston-like left jabs and Jones blocked many other punches.

Clay finally penetrated Jones' guard in the third round with snapping left jabs and fast combinations to the head. But not once did the dead-panned underdog waver under fire.

Loses Prestige

Despite his victory, Clay lost plenty of prestige. He was wild often, ineffective on the inside, and his best bombs had no effect on Jones.

The first boxing sellout in the Garden in six years brought a gross gate of $101,943. The fight was telecast across the country via closed circuit to theaters and arenas and probably added another $200,000 to the promotion. Clay earned about $90,000 and Jones $75,000.

Monroe County Bowls Tonight

THREE matches are carded for the Monroe County Bowling League tonight at Harmon's Recreation starting at 9:15 p.m.

Half Moon Tavern vs. Chestnut Hill Inn on alleys 1 and 2; Larry Beseker's Diner vs. Gem Lunch on alleys 3 and 4, and Schimmel's Store vs. CLU Club on alleys 5 and 6.

Harlem Team At Pleasant Valley

A BASKETBALL doubleheader will be staged in the Pleasant Valley High School tonight with the Harlem Clowns the feature attraction in the second game.

The Clowns will play against members of the Pleasant Valley Athletic Association starting at 8 p.m. In the preliminary game, scheduled for a 7 p.m. start, the Hamilton Township team will meet the Pleasant Valley seventh graders.

The games are being played for the benefit of the Pleasant Valley Athletic Association.

Green Thumb

Growing Pepper Plants

By George Abraham
PEPPERS: One of the most exasperating vegetables you can grow is the pepper. In some years it will bear lots of fruit, other years the plants are all bush and no fruit. Why the difference? Several factors are involved.

First, we'll consider the varieties. Peppers are a warm season crop and not all peppers are adapted to short-growing regions. If you're in an area where frosts come too early for peppers to do anything, better select an early type such as Vinedale.

In our own gardens, Vinedale gives the best performance of all because it's early (bears in 60 days). It's the ideal pepper for all areas with short growing season. Fruit is medium-sized, (and it grows upside down on the plant), and plants are dwarf.

Another fine pepper is Penn-wonder, having dark green, thick flesh. Plants bear in 65 days and they are not so fickle as some varieties. The dark green flesh turns to a rich red when ripe. Fruit is sweet and mild.

Is it true that you must plant peppers close together for bearing? No, this is an old wives' tale. Failure to bear is due to high temperatures, low humidity, and hot drying winds at blossom or bud time. These factors cause the buds to drop off, hence no fruit.

Some peppers are more sensitive to bud drops than others, and that's why you often get no fruit on some plants, lots of fruit on others.

RABBIT INJURY: Can you save a young fruit tree which has been girdled by rabbits? Yes, by resorting to a process known as "bridge-grafting". There is no limit to the age of a tree that can be saved by bridge-grafting. Best time to graft is in spring when buds are swelling.

How do you bridge-graft? You can gather some "sucker" or water sprouts from hardy varieties such as Northern Spy, Stark, Tolman, McIntosh and others, making sure they are about the size of a lead pencil or larger. These twigs are called cions (cy-unz) and are bridges used for spanning the wounded area.

A slanting cut is made on each end and the cut surface is then held against the healthy trunk, after you remove a small piece of bark. Then tack the cion in place with small wire brads. After that you coat all cut surfaces with grafting wax.

Place the cions two inches apart all around the girdled part. These cions will knit with the trunk and carry water and nutrients across the girdled portion.

If rabbits ate only part of the trunk, only this needs to be bridge-grafted. Or, if they did not eat through to the sapwood, your tree will live without resorting to bridge-grafting. But if the bark is entirely eaten away, completely around the trunk, the wound must be bridged if you want to save the tree.

A GOOD TIP: A reader writes: "Enclosed are blossoms of my delphinium and yellow climbing roses which I dried last October. They've kept their color perfectly. All I did was hang them upside down, until they seemed dry, then I sprayed them with colorless plastic spray which comes in aerosol cans."

Green Thumb note: The flowers have colors perfectly preserved by the plastic spray. We appreciate getting this fine tip. One of our readers suggested using the plastic spray on cattail heads to keep the fine silks from "exploding" all over the room.

"Hair net" sprays will do the same on cattails. We appreciate receiving tips from gardeners and hope you'll feel free to send me your suggestions.

LANDSCAPING: Quite often a home owner will want a plant for quick screening effect. There are many you can use, but remember, usually the fastest growing items often present problems such as pruning or wind damage.

Some items for quick effect include Lombardy poplar, weeping willow, Privet (both California and Amur river), honeysuckle, Chinese Elm, Rose of Sharon, Bridal Wreath Spirea, Climbing roses, and if you have a lot of room for growth you might try the multiflora rose for hedge effect.

The multiflora rose is a rampant grower and should not be used in places where space is at a premium. All of these are allowed to grow, unclipped, if you want a quick growing screen.

Some items to try for a formal clipped hedge include amur river privet, Barberry, Blue Leaf Arctic willow, Hicks Yew and Hemlock.

OLD FASHIONED ROSES: We may be living in a modern era, but many gardeners still love the old-fashioned roses, popular 100 years ago. The old roses can't compete with modern varieties in refinement of flower, but they do beat nearly all of them when it comes to fragrance.

One favorite is the Cabbage rose, or "hundred petaled" rose, getting its name from the fact that it looks like a small cabbage. The Moss Rose has the same features as the Cabbage rose except for the "moss" on its sepals and stems.

Then there's the Damask Rose, The French Rose, Banksian Rose and the Wichuraiana rose. All of the above are well worth growing, if you like old-fashioned roses.

Are old-fashioned roses subject to insects and diseases? Not as much as the modern roses. Thrips, aphids and leaf chewers are often troublesome, but they can be checked with malathion or DDT.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: F. K. of Bangor: "I'm very fond of begonias but for some reason we just can't get them to do well for us. What causes the leaves to turn brown and fall?"

Begonias need fresh air and moist air. During the winter months it's difficult to provide these unless you resort to an electric humidifier. Lacking this, you can resort to the old kitchen kettle or water-holding pans on the radiator.

One pest you'll want to watch is the spider mite. It multiplies a thousand-fold when the air is hot and dry. This pest is so small it takes 60 of them to span an inch.

Working mainly on the undersides of foliage, it causes leaves to yellow and drop off. When new foliage is crumpled, puckered and so brittle that it drops at a touch, you can be sure of spider mites. Brown rust areas under the leaves or on stems is telltale evidence of mites and thrips.

CONTROL: You can spray the plants with Kelthane, or you can try an old-fashioned remedy that works with some success. Buy some naphthalene flakes, then scatter these on a plate. Place the pot on these and enclose with a plastic polyethylene bag to confine the fumes. This knocks the mites dead, but has little effect on the eggs themselves.

If these treatments don't work, then resort to the hot water treatment. Submerge the plant in a pail of hot water (110 degs. F) for 15 minutes. This will cook the leaves and cause them to droop. Cut them off and burn. Keep the clipped plant in a room at 72 degrees and it will put out new leaves.

Browned leaf edges is often due to dry air or lack of balanced food, or due to a fungus disease. Cut away the browned area and burn it. Large brown paper-thin spots may be due to sun's rays on wet foliage.

L. D. of Scotrun: "I saved seed from Jerusalem Cherry tree, and planted them. Now I have seedlings about an inch high. What can I do to have bushy plants for Christmas gifts?"

Transplant the seedlings into three-inch pots now, using one-third soil, one-third loam and one-third peat. Grow in a bright window, keep them watered, and a temperature of 72 degrees.

When shirtsleeve weather comes, move them into four or five-inch pots, and set them outdoors, for the summer. Keep them watered, and before frost bring them indoors.

R. D. of East Stroudsburg: "Is there a cheap way for heating a large wooden coldframe? I want it for a hotbed."

Yes, go to your farm supply store or garden store and purchase some lead-covered cable. Loop this back and forth on the bottom of the coldframe, then cover with one-half inch of sand. Plug the cable into a socket and it will do a fine job heating the hotbed. You can start seeds of flowers and vegetables.

Soil Testing Bid Accepted

HARRISBURG (AP)—An unofficial low bid of $7,663 was submitted yesterday to the State Forests and Water Department for soil testing along the Lackawanna River in Mayfield, Lackawanna County.

The apparent low bidder was the Foundation Services Co. of Harrisburg. The work is part of a proposed flood protection project.
